

Dear Jan Mierzejewski,

5/28/82

Listen to your wife. You should spend time with your kids. They need it and you should enjoy it.

On the executive session transcripts, remember that I'm supposed to have all that have been disclosed, as I indicated earlier, so except for any notations that are added or any different versions, like an official reporter's of the 1/21/64 session, don't spend money or time making copies for me.

I am interested in knowing what is available and what is withheld, as I said.

The Stiles archive may be quite interesting. Ford put him on the payroll so he could attend session, have access to records and then write their book

His archive may have what Ford's doesn't. Including on the executive session transcripts. And if you remember Whitewash IV you know that he had what was withheld, used it and even corrupted it for political purposes.

If either has anything ^{on} Nosenko, that could be of interest.

Has either archive made available any inventory?

I think you will find that Stiles also ghosted the Life article Ford signed.

Hope your trip is worthwhile and a success.

Best regards,

6-21-82

Dear Mr. Weisberg,

Got your letter today-good to hear from you. I know what you mean about the mail-mail it here in Southgate and it still has to go to Detroit no matter where its going.

At this time I plan to go to the Ford Library on Thursday July 1st. I'll be off that week but it'll be the first time I have to spend any time with my kids-I work afternoons and don't see them that much during the school year, and my wife would do me in if I didn't spend some time with them(ha ha?). Anyway I will be sure to look for the transcripts you mentioned, especially the one from 5-19-64. Any executive session transcripts I find I will have Xeroxed-they've been pretty good the 2 times I've been there to copy papers while I waited. They aren't exactly swamped with researchers, which is a pity.

There is also a Stiles library near the Ford library. I haven't been there yet, as there so much to go through at the Ford library. But I had the impression that the Stiles library had at least some papers dealing with the Warren Comm. As you know, Stiles worked with Ford on a number of political projects, and was co-author of "Portrait of the Assassin". There may well be papers of interest there, but it will take a while to go through Ford's material.

Any material I find that is useful I am happy to send at my expense. I have limited access to a Xerox machine at work and can sometimes sneak in and run a few copies. If you ever travel to the Detroit area I will be more than glad to take you out to the library.

~~Im~~ I don't plan to bother Humes and Spitz-that's the kind of thing that can make researchers look bad. I just wrote a very neutral letter to Humes and didn't really expect a reply. I was surprised he was listed in the phone book, though. Haven't even contacted Spitz.

I'll write as soon as I can after going to the library, including any papers I turn up. Til then good luck and keep up the fight.

Sincerely,

Jan A. Mierzejewski
