Dear Mr. Hurley:

I write this pursuant to our conversation earlier today when I called about the return to the sender of mail properly addressed to me.

As I told you, I just cannot imagine that either Mr. Fulmer or Mr. Hawkins did this, and, in fact, I am certain neither did, even though I am not familiar with the workings of your office.

As a matter of fact, I simply cannot imagine better service than these men and those who have relieved them could possibly render anyone. I don't think I can praise them highly enough. In fact, going back to the days when Warren High carried our mail, I really think that we have received wonderful service, especially considering the unusual problems sometimes involved because of the nature of the work I do and the fact that I am a book publisher.

I would appreciate it if in the records you keep on these men you would record not only my sincere appreciation but my unstinting praise for the services all have rendered. I appreciate it even more right now because I am limited in what I can do by phlebitis.

Sincerely,

Harold Weisberg
