Although Look had agreed to Mrs. Kennedy's demands that cuts be made in the text. Nannen said that he would publish everything despite repeated warnings from Look that "they would make desperate efforts to force Stern to print the cenw sored version."

"It's the most outstanding manuscript I ever saw in my journalistic career," he continued. "The tape interview with Mrs. Kennedy was  $10\frac{1}{2}$ hours. She talked to the Warren Commission about 20 minutes."

CALLS IT POLITICAL

Nannen insisted that Mrs. 1: Kennedy wanted the deletions A made for political rather than H personal reasons: "The crux of the matter is the animosity be- ta tween the Kennedys and Presi- 1' dent Johnson," he said.

"It may be a little harmful I to President Johnson because he was not very polite, if Manchester is correct." Nannen referred to the swearing-in of Johnson in the Presidential plane, Air Force One, in Dallas.

I The publisher, interviewed on NBC-TV's Huntley-Brinkley Report, commented that the full s text gives the reader an impresn sion of Mrs. Kennedy as "the r wife losing her man whom she e loves."
