Figure 1: This astonishing photograph, from Newsweek (22 November 1993), shows the final headshot at 30-40 feet further down Elm Street than frame Z-313 (the supposed final headshot). This downhill location is strongly suggested by early reenactments as well as data tables and documents, all of which the Warren Commission ignored.

Mentor, he begins largely concerned in the medical evidence. It would be more accurate if he had said his concept of a very small part of the medical evidence in which he adds nothing to what was known of that part and he adds his knowledge to what was known about the crime, to put into the medical evidence a to what was known about the crime. He talks about his belief that it all comes with him when no fact does. He talks about this false, that the medical evidence can yield no meaningful conclusion about Oswald's ultimate guilt or innocence. It cannot add and be significant of it. While telling down to all others including those who did the least he is sure of.
