Dear Mr. Marshall:

When Harold returns from hospital and is back at work, he will reply to your letter of 9-10. He has just undergone some arterial repair and is doing very well.

As you requested, I am enclosing another list of books.

Sincerely,

Lillian Weisberg

Dear Harold:

Well, I've just plowed thru all 650 pages of Post Mortem. At first, I'm not quite sure what I thought of it. I do know that both my wife & editors (I'm on the staff of; American Handgunner, Police Marksman, Police Product News, Combat Shooters Report, and Law & Order magazines) were screaming bloody murder about neglected responsibilities.

I guess because the point was so basic I missed it until I reflected on it-if the wound in the back of JFK was lower than the neck wound it eliminates (at least for this wound) Oswald as the shooter, and certainly raises the possibility (until we can see the X-Rays) that JFK was shot 3 times. There are any number of weapons (including the high velocity, flat trajectory, .264 Winchester Magnum-with which the shots would have been easy) that have the same bore diameter as the M-C rifle. Whatever else Oswald was, HE WAS NOT STUPID. After qualifying with the M-1 Garand, he was certainly aware that the Carcano was a piece of junk (if he ever actually ordered or ever saw it-if the famous backyard shots were really taken by Marina at the same time, one wonders how the ring managed to jump from one hand to the other- I've always considered them rather poor fakes). The 7.65 Mauser "found" in the TBD was an economical weapon that was much more accurate & was capable of rapid fire.

A couple of years ago, CBC (Canadian Broadcasting Company) put on a special about the JFK caper. It was shown locally on the Windsor station (across the river from Detroit)-unfortunately, I was at work- assigned to desk duty with countless interruptions, but I thought Loran Halls comments were interesting (if true). He commented that the conspiracy was like an onion-there were countless false trails or layers to the thing before you could get to the real participants. I was once told by an associate of Hoffa's that a contract was put out for the job, but he refused to say by who or if the money was even paid. I frankly don't think it was. I think, however, it's senseless to think in terms of a left-wing or right-wing Conspiracy. It was a power Conspiracy that transcended such inaccurate labels.

I think you're right about the Tippit killing. It's one thing for the "Commie Bastard" to kill that "Nigger-Loving JFK" (which I'm sure was a fairly accurate representation of how the Dallas PD felt about JFK), but when he killed a cop that changed the whole thing. I can assure that nothing matches the feelings a cop experiences when one of his "brothers" is killed. I've always felt that Oswald was supposed to be eliminated there in the Theatre.

Sorry to cut this short, but I've got several articles I need to grind out.

Peace;

Evan Marshall

P.S. Could you send me another list of book available from you? * Since the building was never searched, we can only speculate who or what might have been present.
