Dear Mr. Mayhew,

I wish I understood what it is you seek in your letter of 5/28 in asking "Please furnish me with more information".

If it is about the relevant material I have, what is in files takes up more than a dozen and a half drawers. If it is about the extent of my work, I've done almost nothing else since the tragedy and have averaged not less than 16 hours a day of work, until recently considerably more. I have laid out a course of inquiry and writing, not committed to a definite outline on paper, on which I have been working. I project and have largely or entirely completed the research for quite a few books as yet not written. I have been able to force the production of some of the suppressed evidence, which was not in the Archives. By various means, including litigation, I fully expect to produce much more. My first suit was successful in that the government backed down and delivered before trial. I've laid the foundation for not fewer than six more already and the partial basis for a number more. It is possible to obtain what is suppressed where it is improperly suppressed. Not all that is withheld is suppressed, for some of it, properly, should be.

I look forward to your visit. We are about an hour by car from the three "local" commercial airports at Washington and Baltimore, have a local airport for private planes only, and there are two decent motels about five minutes away if you'd like to remain overnight and our accommodations are less than you'd prefer. I would be happy to meet you at any airport and, if you'd like to visit the Archives, would be delighted to escort you. However, I think this should be after we talk for it to be most productive for you and to make the most efficient use of your time possible.

Sincerely,

Harold Weisberg
