Dear Jamie,

It may be a little while before I get to the chapters with your 1/11. I got a box from Dennis that I have to go through and with the local retyping only problems that should not exist and much waste of my time. People insist on doing what I tell them repeatedly not do do and not doing what I ask-and not learning from the mistakes that result.

And, I'm deep into a second Afterword for a book I doubt you know about, Waketh the Watchman. It may be that once I see what I have ^{from Dennis} I'd better finish that in part because that book is long finished.

It addresses motive, means and opportunity.

Depends on how I feel when I get up early mornings. If I should just sit then I'll be going over some of this. With Dennis away probably what you sent would be what I get onto.

In any event, thanks and I'll be in touch again before too long.

Have a good year,

January 11, 1996

Dear Mr. & Mrs. Weisberg,

I spoke w/ Professor MacDonald, and he asked that I send you the drafts of chapters 42, 43 and 45, if I remember correctly, so that you may make comparisons and corrections. They are enclosed herein.

I hope that you are both happy and well. As always, your life seems so fascinating, and I think it's great that you are able to reflect that in your work.

I have almost finished the four chapters that Dennis had last sent me; I have perhaps 10 pages left to type. I will then send you my hours. I'm not sending them now as I wanted to get these documents off to you quickly. Dennis indicated he would be sending me more work, and that I should hold on to what I have now until I finish that which he sends me; if you'd like to see the product sooner by all means let me know.

Take good care —

Sincerely,

Jamie Lyn Smith
