A bilingual record of American history with pictures that illustrate major themes in the country's life and bloodstream is the concept behind American Highlights/Los Estados Unidos: United States History in Notable Works of Art/Grandes Momentos en su Historia a Través de Prominentes Obras de Arte, by Edith Pavese, published this month by Abrams ($29.95). All of the text appears in both English and Spanish. Shown here: Red Grooms's wood construction Somewhere in Beverly Hills/En algún lugar de Beverly Hills (1966-67). Abrams plans to direct the book largely to the educational market, and to follow up with Japanese, French, German and Russian in place of the Spanish.

who the participants were." Viking plans a 100,000-copy first printing, national publicity campaign and satellite tour, and is looking for a way to give the book a lavish launch in Dallas or on TV.

History of the Literature

Scores of possible participants are exposed in Who Shot JFK? A Guide to the Major Conspiracy Theories ($12), an October Fireside original from Simon & Schuster. Written by Bob Callahan, a book packager and former speech writer for Sen. Robert Kennedy, illustrated by artist Mark Zingarelli and based on information compiled by David Park and Peter Dale Scott, Who Shot JFK? profiles upward of 20 conspiracy speculations.

"My work for Robert Kennedy might have blinded me to all these theories until the Stone movie jerked me awake," Callahan says from his home base in California. "I think this is a real murder case, and I have a feeling that all of the pieces still aren't there."

Explaining his book, which he calls "a history of the literature of the conspiracy," he says, "it's like a chronological Reader's Digest version of my reading of all this stuff. It's the most comprehensive look at the history of the arguments as they developed." Oswald was involved in the assassination, Callahan concedes, and there may even be a remote possibility that he acted alone. "But I wanted to establish sympathy for the point that this is still an open case," he says. "The problem is the politics surrounding the case. The people around Oliver Stone were on a blind leftie mission. They were just as blind as the Warren Commission was."

Zingarelli's noir graphics are reminiscent of those found in the old True Crime Quarterly, says Callahan: "Mark's art is driven by the narrative. If the theories get goofy, the art gets goofy, and it's serious where it should be."

S & S has extensive marketing plans, with reader's copies at the ABA, a five-city author tour, a 25-city radio satellite tour, national print advertising and a counter display with riser. The first printing is 35,000.

Other Entries, Other Opinions

Carroll & Graf's November entry is Killing the Truth: Deceit and Deception in the JFK Case ($23). The author is Harrison Edward Livingstone, a conspiracy believer, who, with Robert J. Groden (see Viking book above), wrote High Treason, self-published in hardcover by Livingstone several years ago and put into paperback by Berkley. Carroll & Graf published Livingstone's High Treason 2 in hardcover in 1992, and will produce the trade paperback this year.

"Most of the people who've done the research and interviewing on the assassination have been independent writers," says publisher Kent Carroll. "Killing the Truth is about who these people are. It suggests that many have, for one reason or another, out a lot of disinformation, fueling the conspiracy.

"Livingstone," continues "knows what he's talking about the guy who discovered an antibody in the public the fact that Kennedy's glands had atrophied because of the radiation he was taking. He realized that he would probably die in office anyway." First will be at least 50,000 copies says.

David S. Lifton is still working on the manuscript of a Lee Harvey Oswald biography, so his book Lonely Hearts: Oswald: He Led Three Lives has been postponed until 1994. Lifton, who earlier wrote Best Men, which charged an assassination conspiracy at the highest level of the federal government, has been granted unlimited access to the Oswald files and has conducted interviews with the Russians and her husband.

In November, Dutton will publish Cause of Death: The Final Hours of the President ($23) by Cyril Wecht, a forensic pathologist who intends to set a record for the number of disputatious cases, that of JFK's death. The book says that Wecht offers new evidence on the president's misadventure and thoroughly discredits the bullet theory. He also offers a theory that Sirhan Sirhan could not have shot that killed Robert Kennedy.

Deep Politics and the Death of JFK by Peter Dale Scott (see Fireside above), a poet and professor of political science at UC Berkeley, says JFK's death was more than an isolated incident (University of California Press, Oct., $25). Scott maintains it was symptomatic of a sea change being played out well beneath the surface of American international and domestic policies. Among the speculations are Kennedy's plans to draw troops from Vietnam with his Joint Chiefs of Staff, and the 1963 collaboration between the CIA and the Dallas

On a more personal note, an account of the assassination is recalled from Edward Kennedy's point of view in McGinnis's Biography of a Senator from Massachusetts, Last Brother ($25), due from S & S, with a two-volume forthcoming in Vanity Fair. The book portrays a man peripheral to the assassination drama of the Kennedy assassination, even during the aftermath of the shooting.
