

United Press International

A Cuban pilot (left) waits to return a MIG-17 to Cuba. The plane was flown to Florida by a defecting Cuban pilot. Defector's MIG Flown Back to Cuba after U.S. airmen rolled up their sleeves and helped a Cuban ground crew get the jet fighter fueled and started. It took five hours for the asylum.

combined crews to prepare the link-ups for starting.

flew a stolen MIG 17 back to the Communist island today of ammunition flew here last tudes of less than 40 fort most A Destar of ammunition, flew here last tudes of less than 40 feet most for and was granted political

The MIG landed Sunday Russian-built plane for its within sight of the plane Pres- investigation of the U.S. down" for low-flying planes, short flight back to Cuba be ident Nixon was about to fense network. board for a return flight to "Here we've just authorized but none were in the air when cause of different generator board for a return flight to Washington.

The MIG 17, armed with a | Lt. Jimenez told Air Force | yet we're not protected from HOMESTEAD AFB, Fla., The MIG 17, armed with a Lt. Jimenez told Air Force yet were not protected from Oct. 7 (UPI)—A Cuban pilot 37-mm machinegun and two officials he flew from his base Cuba, only 90 miles away,"

This prompted U.S. Rep. somewhat limited," and that Paul Rogers, D-Fia., to call no investigation was planned. Tuesday for a congressional investigation of the U.S. de-times sent aloft to "look $21 billion for our defense and Lt. Jimenez made his flight.

A Pentagon spokesman said Sunday. The pilot, Lt. Ed- of the way and thus avoided it was "recognized that low uardo Guerra Jimenez, asked detection. level radar capabilities are times sent aloft to "look down" for low-flying planes,