

Dear Bill,

3/23/96

In your 2/19 you again refer to retyping O in NO. As I wrote you earlier, reducing the height of the page is not that important to me. I'll be happier if instead of that being retyped some of what is in rough draft is typed clean. If that were done instead I'd be able to read and correct it. For example, the Mailer manuscript, which is about 200,000 words, supposedly is being retyped by a student. She was not able to do anything between semesters because she had to care for her mother who delayed major surgery until she was home. She has a job at college. So she has little time for typing. Most by far of that remains to be done and she has not even looked at the corrections I made in the few chapters I got from her before the end of the last school year. I've seen nothing from her since then.

After you and Charles have thought about what I wrote about the pictures I'd like to hear from you. There is no rush on the unbound copies. This time of the year sales are always slow and that professor's students have not ordered that book in the quantity they did last semester. I won't run out for a while.

I'll be sending you another O in NO. Any reduction in height is helpful because it would mean less stuffing in boxes when that and the other sizes are both being shipped at the same time. But it has not been all that burdensome with the current size.

I've had no response from the ARRB but if I get those transcripts you'll be welcome to a copy.

If I did not tell you the surgeon recommended against the hip replacement now because so much of her pain does not come from the hip. A new medication seems to be of a little help.

She has not complained about being behind on her tax work but she is staying up late on it. She does enjoy it.

If you can make another trip, that will be fine. We'll be glad to see you again.

It is not new but it is still odd that my bedtime comes when there is a bright sun!

Again many thanks to you all,

I can now use a few 1/2x11 boxes like you sent me, now many, maybe 10-15, and no rush. I've plenty of other sizes but just used the last of that size for a ms. Stationery size, and thanks.

Harold
