Lawson, Ga.

Gentlemen:

On August 16, 1963 I sent you five thousand dollars through the mail along with my pass book. You entered this amount to my credit on my pass book and returned the pass book to me.

When I was at your office the 29th of July I mentioned that I would appreciate a Noralco transistor portable tape recorder as the best price offered, if this were possible, for a ten thousand dollar amount. It seems to me like we agreed upon this. I also told you that you might get in touch with a concern that sold these portable tape recorders for a reasonable price. You may have written them and thank again you for that. In any event, I am sending you their latest price list and I have circled the tape recorder I have in mind.

Please do not think I am trying to tell you folks how to run your affairs, as I am not. What I am trying to do is point out to you what I had in mind and what we possibly agreed on when I called on you. I hope this meets with your approval. I am in no great hurry for this recorder but can put it to good use when it arrives.

I shall be looking forward to hearing from you before long.

Sincerely,

Samuel Steven Story

Utah Savings and Loan Association was founded in 1919 by a group of thrift-minded Utahns who hoped to provide an avenue through which they might obtain a safe and profitable return on their savings, while providing funds for home ownership. During its notable history it has served thousands of savers, while providing the means of home ownership to hundreds of families.

Like most savings and loan associations, Utah Savings invests primarily in first mortgage real estate loans, based on conservative appraisals, and repayable on a monthly basis.

Utah Savings was chartered and is supervised and examined regularly by the Banking Department of the State of Utah. To insure up-to-date reports on internal progress and trends, Utah Savings also undergoes an annual audit by a firm of Certified Public Accountants.
