Dear Mr. Lesar:

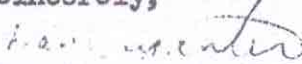

This is to apologize for the long delay in publishing the transcript of the interview we held with you earlier this summer. Besides constraints of space, we have had a very frustrating series of mechanical problems in typesetting.

I hope now to be able to run the interview, verbatim, in two parts beginning next week or the following week. It will be part of our series on efforts to reopen the King assassination case. Stories based on interviews with Harold Weisberg, David Wrono, and local critics will be included.

I wanted to assure you that we did not take your time frivolously, that we are in earnest about plugging the information gap in this matter for our readers.

Thanks for your patience. I will send you a copy of each edition of our paper in which articles about the King assassination appear.

Sincerely,

Dan Carpenter, M.E.
