Nixon Seeks 'Influence' Agreement

By Drew Pearson and Jack Anderson

Behind President Nixon's diplomatic sparring with the Russians is the secret aim of negotiating a non-interference pact which would keep the two superpowers out of each other's sphere of influence.

This is not unlike a proposal made by Joseph Stalin at Teheran to Winston Churchill and Franklin D. Roosevelt that Russia have its shpere of influence in Eastern Europe and nearby Asia, the British have theirs in Western Europe and Africa, and the United States its sphere of influence in America. Roosevelt Latin turned this down.

President Nixon's current ideas would be along the line of a private understanding rather than a formal treaty, with the United States agreeing not to interfere with Soand Russia pledging not to meddle in Latin American af-

The President has taken Czechslovakia. He believes the have been "encouraging." Kremlin should be equally Latin America.

The President believes, say nuclear confrontation between data and wind tunnel analysis, with wiretaps, income tax re- 1969, Bell-McClure Syndicate, Inc.

tensions in the world.

take skillful diplomacy to re- and flying qualities are re-United States and Russia pilots who have flown the airaren't arbitrarily carving up craft." the world into separate spheres. As the President the press had misrepresented go after the Mafia. views it, any Russian-Ameri- the amount of the cost incan understanding would not crease. In 1964, Seamans said, ence of other nations.

Note: Nixon's approach is the opposite of that of the Ei- in the press. senhower Administration. which came into power full decided to increase the pay-of bluster about "liberating" load, which added $350 million the countries behind the Iron to the cost. Inflation added an-Hungary in 1956.

Will C-5A Be OK?

and its cost overruns, the C-5A $382 million, according to Seamay turn out to be a pretty mans. viet policy in Eastern Europe good airplane. This is the gist fo a confidential memo to Sec-fied the Secretary of Defense retary of Defense Mel Laird that a management review of from Air Force Secretary Bob the CoA program has been Seamans in which Seamans started. pains, for example, not to in- has defended the C-5A and has terfere with Soviet moves in reported that its flight tests willing to keep its hands off from the aircraft flight test special task forces in key cit-sistant Attorney General Will program," wrote Seamans, ies to crac "has been encouraging. "Four ized crime. insiders, that a private under- aircraft have accumulated standing on spheres of influ- over 230 flying hours. Based ers int he roaring 20s, the with the gang-busting drive he ence is the best way to avoid a on this preliminary flight test new task forces will be armed long has been urging.

He recognizes that it will ance guarantees. Its handling against the racket bosses. assure other nations that the ported to be excellent by the rected by Henry Petersen, interfere with the independ the Air Force estimated that General Ramsey Clark, who 120 planes would cost $3.1 billion—the figure widely quoted nate use of wiretaps.

Subsequently, the Air Force Curtain. All the talk turned other $500 million, and anwhen the Soviets moved into spare parts and ground equipment was ordered.

The actual overrun was not Will C-5A Be OK? the full $2.1 billion that the shape to meet the challenge.

Despite all the bad publicity press has reported, but only Clark wanted to spend all

In any case, Seamans noti-

Crime Crackdown

Attorney General "The information received Mitchell is quietly forming Richard Kleindienst and Aswrote Seamans, ies to crack down or organ- Wilson.

the superpowers and to reduce the aircraft is forecast to meet turns and every other legal or exceed all of its perform- weapon that can be used

> The crackdown will be dichief of the Justice Department's organized crime sec-Seamans complained that tion, who has been itching to

> > Under the Democrats he was restrained by Attorney was opposed to the indiscrimit

Clark also felt that the Justice Department should concentrate on the less glamorous load, which added $350 million but more compelling problem of combating crime in the streets. While this is a probout to be empty, however, other $840 million worth of lem for local police, he was convinced it would take all available Federal resources to whip the local forces into

> Clark wanted to spend all the taxpayers' money he could lay his hand on to improve the standards, training and equipment of local police forces.

Mitchell, however, is looking for dramatic results which, he feels, will help bring back a law-and-order atmosphere in the country. He is supported John by Deputy Attorney General

They have now unleashed Like Elliot Ness's gangbust- Petersen, who is going ahead