Polaroid Picture of Assassination

On November 22, 1963, while at the Dallas County Sheriffs Office, Dallas, Texas, I talked to Mary Ann Mooreman, 2832 Ripplewood, Dallas, Texas. She had a polaroid picture of the Texas School Book Depository that she had taken at the time of the assassination which she surrendered to me for use in our investigation. It was not known to me, at that time, exactly where the shots had come from in that building so I could not tell if the picture was of value or not.

The next day I learned which window the shot had been fired from and after checking the picture determined that the photograph did not show this window at all. In fact, the picture was of such poor quality that no detail of the building, windows or surrounding areas was distinguishable.

On the 23rd or 24th of November our office received a call from the SAC of the local FBI office requesting the picture and it was subsequently turned over to one of their agents, believed to be SA Brown,

No statement was taken from Mrs. Moorman since she had given a signed sworn statement to the Sheriff's Office and a copy of it was sent to this service. No report was made on the photograph since it was given to the FBI and it appeared to have no value in regard to the investigation.

It has been learned that this photograph has been returned to Mrs. Moorman and is still in her possession.
