

10/13/92

Dear Max,

Your 10/2 tells me that you or an alleged source, having scrapped the bottom of the barrel, are in the ~~max~~ sewers in your reading.

There is only one place where the fiction about the Univ. and me appeared, in Howard Donahue's despicable Mortal Error. "hich that disgraceful book is.

I debunked it in advance for him when he was here. He has the kind of ego that does not permit that he make any error no matter how serious that error is. He went ahead with the book and made up that slander. "nd is the publisher sorry!

I made no offer to the Univ. of Md. and I had no interest in my records being there. I made no offer to my own Alma Mater. Local Hood College is one of the best of the small colleges in the entire country and is rated ^{ed} by its peers as the 14th best of all sizes in the entire northeast. The historian who will be in charge of this archive is one of my dearest friends. and in the design of the new library and information center just dedicated a few weeks ago they built in special provision for it, complete with air and humidity control. So, the Univ. of Md. never turned me down and I never propositioned it.

They plan ultimately to make copies available to all other libraries by some new optical arrangement I do not understand. But can you think of a better home or why I should have even thought of looking ~~fix~~ for one? Which I didn't.

Thanks for the suggestions but there is no need for them. Aside from what I no longer need and the library has the whole thing is and for years has been ~~xxxxxxx~~ recorded in the courthouse.

Don't put any money on your overview of strategies. Much of it is far out and some, like getting Hoover to cooperate with the CIA, is impossible.

Thanks and best wishes,

Harold Weisberg

Dear Harold,

Greetings to the Old Receiver from a Solid Sender!

I confirm that a code-name used for the shooter behind the stockade fence was "The Hammer-Thrower". His stand-in, whose real name was Rowland, sometimes practised with a length of pipe referred to as "The Bazooka". Rowland is quite important, but I doubt that he was anywhere near Dallas on the day in question.

I understand that you have offered to donate many of your documents to the University of Maryland, but without success. I suggest that you try to locate a former classmate of mine (not connected with the Dr. Maurice Weisberg in Santa Fe) who became a dean at the University of Maryland. I believe he may have been dean of a graduate school or the School of Business. His name is Donald O'Connell. If you locate him, I am sure he will be interested, especially if you mention my name.

If he has not heard of Harold Weisberg, tell him I think you're like Prof. Dwight W. Miner. On a personal note, tell him I am looking into a matter for you concerning the Holocaust. Tell him I am writing an amusing musical play about Jews and Celts. You may also add that I am quite interested, among other things, in circumstantial evidence.

Never mind Candy Cain. Find Don O'Connell. What next? Maybe Don can locate a master-mind of American history, Prof. Dwight W. Miner, formerly of Columbia.

Take care of yourself.

Cordially,

Max Norman

Sept. 20, 1992.

Memorandum: An Overview of Strategies.

- A. The Comprehensive Conspiracy
- B. The Enforced Collaboration
- C. The Resistance Movement

1. There was a Conspiracy, from at least the time of the inception of the CIA, in 1947-48.
2. The Conspiracy, headed by Hoover, had a hierarchy down through the FBI, to the hand-picked CIA, and then down to all agencies of government, and to the Mafia, who were promoted as junior partners of the CIA, while remaining scapegoats for the FBI.
3. There was an important Resistance Movement within the Conspiracy.
4. The Conspiracy was aware of the Resistance Movement.
5. The Resistance Movement, knowing that the Conspiracy was unstoppable within its time-frame, provided it with important collaboration.
6. The Conspiracy assisted the Resistance Movement, in a self-destruct infrastructure, or, more properly, a limited biodegradable dimension.
