Dear Bill, 7/7/95

Popkin's son may have been crabby because of his unhappiness with his father's craziness. Whe should have been much embarrassed by that.

On you dog sleeping with Betsy and ESB, in the 1940s we had a corssed fox terrier who would lie done next to Til. If I'll had a headache and I moved near her that dog growled and told me to stay away. Somehow he knew when lil was not feelling well. So I can buy dog ESP.

And we both hope you can both come here this fall. I look forward to a visit from erry and Dennis next month the when they deliver a paper in Washington.

That "missile" receipt was probably for a fragment. A corpsman typed it up.

Schulman's name sounds familiar. Be nice if he goes for it. May tell a few more people about the known fact. And how they can learn more. I think more and more that it is the stupidity of omitting the subtitle from the cover that has so many stores not stocking the book. I learned only after the cover was made. I got them to use it on the inside title page but that is not on the computers from which the stores decide what to stock.

But
