Military Yields Posit

By Jack Anderson

With an explosion of grim directives, the Pentagon has cut military readiness to conserve precious fuel.

Navy steaming time has been reduced 20 per cent, military flying time 18 per cent. Training flights have been restricted in Thailand. U.S. military in Europe have been curtailed. Even in the tense Mediterranean, ships are spending more time in port, and planes are flying fewer exercises.

As evidence that the brass hats are sacrificing, too, the Pentagon has announced that room temperatures have been reduced, Christmas lighting cancelled and limousines abandoned.

All this has been accomplished with great fanfare, presumably as justification for seizber and December. Even more will be siphoned from civilian save fuel. supplies in the months to come.

The order was issued by the Interior Department, which has But Secretary Rogers C. B. Mor-lights have been consigned to authority over fuel allocation. ton entrusted this crucial power "economy sedans." The Penta-Eli Reich, whose first major move was to direct 22 oil companies to give top priority to the driven Matador. armed forces.

rentagon, nowever, they naven to dozen light sedans were also on the ground, the band travious junkets.

let the stringent fuel economies standing by. Several of the miliels in two buses. But the conductions of 1973, United Feature Syndicate own lifestyles.

James Schlesinger and Joint sengers. of Staff Chairman We have also been inundated until public pressure the wives and kids around. sine forced them to do so last weekend.

contended, the limousines use a the football excursion. "relatively insignificant amount." The armed forces have also of fuel."

Other Pentagon pashas, according to the official word, have turned in their limousines ged around in a chauffeur-

Yet we stopped by the Penta-At the same time that the gon the other day and counted cost the taxpayers over $14,000, brass hats have reduced combat seven limousines parked at a readiness and cooled off the main entrance. More than a motors to keep the vehicles to ride in a bus with enlisted Both Defense Secretary warm for their privileged pas-players. He rents a separate car

Thomas Moorer, for example, with citizen complaints about ised, as a fuel conservation have gravely warned that the military cars hauling wives to measure, to curtail "open house fuel shortage could cripple the the supermarket and children exhibits" and "aerial demonarmed forces. Yet neither offi- to school. My associate, Joe strations." But the fuel scarcity cial considers the crisis severe Spear, made a half-dozen spot was known earlier this year enough to give up his gas-guzz- checks and found that military when the Navy and Marines sent ling, chauffeur-driven limou-drivers are still chauffeuring helicopters, biplanes, parachu-

Last week end, the military brass swarmed to the East Coast farm of Virginia businessman E. Just before he exchanged his in official cars and planes for Carl Hengen for his annual corlimousine for a smaller car, the annual Army-Navy football porate picnic. Schlesinger declared petu-game in Philadelphia. The Navy lantly that "if there are souls in chartered 75 buses to haul mid-officially regarded as a "public" torment," he would be "quite shipmen to the game. West display." happy to abandon" his big lim- Point cadets dug into their own scarcely advertised and guards ousine. "In the total picture," he pockets to charter 47 buses for at Hengen's gate routinely stop-for mere Chryslers. Lesser planes-a C-118 and a C-131. Three months ago, the band and its affiliated Singing Sergeants heim, for example, is now lug- flew back to Washington to perform two numbers for the Air Force Association's annual mony. bash. The two musical pieces not to mention all the fuel that was burned.

On the ground, the band travinterfere seriously with their tary drivers were running their tor, Col. Arnold Gabriel, refuses for himself.

The military has now promtists and even the new Harrier vertical take-off plane to the

The free entertainment was However, it was ped drivers to make inquiries.

The energy crisis also hasn't' refused to cut down on the 143 seemed to interfere with the Air Of course, every individual bands, which not only cost the National Guard's junkets. Three ing 19.7 million barrels of oil motorist on the road could use taxpayers $48.3 million a year weeks ago, about 100 students from civilian stocks in Novem- the same excuse for not heeding but consume enormous quanti- and instructors at the guard's President Nixon's appeal to ties of fuel traveling around the noncommissioned officers acadworld to toot the Pentagon's emy in Knoxville, Tenn., flew in two KC-97 refueling planes to The Air Force band, for exam- the Houston space center for a ple, flies to concerts in two air-three-day "education" tour. This week, the guard is planning to fly three planeloads of civilian and military dignitaries to a retired armchair admiral, gon's press chief, Jerry Fried-interrupted a Texas tour and from Iowa to the Knoxville hands at a graduation cere-

Meanwhile the Pentagon is requisitioning civilian fuel, at least in part, so the brass hats won't have to give up their chauffeured cars and pleasure.