

There are two quotes from Kissinger scaring-in I saw on TV and not in today's WfPost. Nixon's psychological need to tell himself and everyone else how great he is (Henry was worried about confirmation, which I doubt, and "I told him the vote would be big and it was"); and Henry's fine self-serving statement on how decent governments are not run by hate, secrecy and other such. My Harilyn Berger quoted there in her story or why if she didn't they were edited out baffles me because the story is meant in quote and there are by any standard meaningful quotes. Wf 9/15/73
