

Dear Harold:

16 June 1998

A short note to enclose an enclosure that didn't get into yesterday's letter. Dave Wrone now has chapters 9 to 13 (13 without the embedded graphics which clogged up the file transfer or something). I will send the graphics files as separate attachments in the morning so that he can marry them up with the chapter 13 file.

I am working on Chapter 14 tonight and will be done possibly as early as tomorrow. With it. I am beginning to believe that outgoing mail in Idaho Falls sometimes gets held longer than expected if you hit the mail cycle wrong. For example they pick up mail at the post office in Idaho falls three times a day starting about 11:00 and transport to a local collection and sorting hub in Pocatello (as evidenced by the cancellation stamp) before it goes cross country. They appear to do little sorting here. That may explain some of the time elapse mystery but I am baffled with the opened/damaged envelope.

Until we communicate by phone.

Hope you and Lil's are doing well.

Clay Ogilvie

P.S. Got a book in the mail from Raymond Marcus, The Bastard Bullet, in which your name was cited as appreciating all his work in the book. He seemed to place a lot of esteem in your endorsement of the book.
