JFK ASSASSINATION

0

B Dick Russell

re case received a routine okay lo al right-wing Minutemen and tien of John F. Kennedy, a curious to low managed to raise bond, his If 3, shortly before the assassina-A FF) division. in his arresting federal agent arged with a violation of the aply a young man, allied with rest occurred in Dallas. It did tional Firearms Act. When the ohol, Tobacco and Firearms seem so curious at the time-Ellsworth of mid-November Treasury's that a few days later, when Frank Ellsworth was called to a price interrogation room to questicat Lee Harvey Oswald about the rife found in his alleged assassin's not, the agent was certain that held made one of history's most tragic mistakes.

"Oswald was sitting in a chair ab at 10 feet from the doorway," ab at 10 feet from the doorway," El sworth would remember. "And all 1 could see was headlines that I'd just turned loose the man who kill d the President."

I'e hadn't. However, the man Ell-worth had arrested and relected was, in his words, "an ab-olute dead-ringer for Oswald—

'In several instances where witnesses believed they'd seen Oswald, they were actually seeing his "twin."

I the village VOICE August 23, 1976

passed for each other." like identical twins; they could've One involved a "Leon Oswald" facial features, hair. They were spiracy theory feasible, at least, downtown Dallas;" and that in at a rifle range and cashing a chack in a grocery store. The wi re else. er "Oswald" was supposed to have menth of November 1963, wherevnt ment of Oswald's arrest, perbe a seen, he was really someproblem was, especially in the (though Oswald didn't drive). to have seen him driving a car other incident was the repeated fe ily credible witnesses claimed and Oswald." Almost from the y had seen him in a gun shop, uing than the possibility of a dent ought to be killed. When this ound the Kennedy assassinafew have proved more in-TILL SOLL OSSUL ALL BE that question ("The Second Oswald," 1966). common for false reports of idensomeone in a conspiracy. One na and for the commission's critev n its most reliable witnesses as W. rren Commission dismissed tif ation to arise Of course, it is hardly unarently for this reason, the , even devoted a whole book to olar, Professor Richard Pop-'c-alike might have been used by es of mistaken identity. It reto speculate that an Oswald publicized investigation. during a spiracy takes several forms. Obviously, Oswald being seen in two wald never really fired a shot. lealing evidence to implicate Oscornise detectives forever. Bee helped blaze a trail of misces at once would serve to he notion of an Oswald "douas an assassin-even if this, being involved in a con-Popkin and a look-alike could others the two most famous "double who came with two Latin compan- believed they'd seen Oswald, not- rumors that he had some connections to the door of a Cuban woman , ably including his constant prac- tion with the family of (Texas

Dallas rifle range shortly before Fair Play for Cuba Committee, his sedly on his way to Mexico. The tember 1963, Oswald was suppooccurred in Dallas in late Sep- revelations about this mysterious reports, and who apparently had voiced the opinion that the Presisomewhere else. mission concluded he'd really been Minutemen. the assassination-almost always "twin" was an equally familie "Oswald" target-practicing at a at times when the Warren Com-THE CASE OF THE Report. Oswald was already far away from the building and riding tion. Later that day, Craig posi- talked about it," says Ellsworth. few minutes after the assassina- aware of this situation, because we from the Texas School Book De- rumors? ous as that may sound, a Dallas was indeed "sheer coincidence," a bus toward his home. pository and climbed into a lightdeputy sheriff named Roger Craig then why didn't the Warren Comfired some shots himself. As dubiics, that a look-alike could have It is even possible, say the crit-dence, Frank Ellsworth broke a 12-year where he now serves as a regional the man is still alive, well, public affairs officer for ATF, interrogated by federal authorities Last week, in the Dallas office

his "twin." tice in November at a Pelleg sife | Gillians in mann of the the government conversing the acrange, they were actually saving did give chase to a man who ran mission reveal it and clear up the that he was out shooting with But, strangely enough, while the was able to ascertain after the, real Oswald was supposedly a faparently associated with Cuban exiles. If his presence in Dallas of Mexico. Like Oswald, he apright-winger and member of the Minutemen. Like Oswald, he natic Leftist and member of the dismissed as a curiosity of history. personage, his existence might be supposed to have been at someseems to have traveled in and out If not for several other Ellsworth tively identified the man as Os- "We laid it to rest, and satisfied wald. But, according to police ourselves it was merely coinci-sources cited in the Warren dence. I have a vague recollection colored Rambler station wagon a state, federal and local-were fugitive. custody. We weren't looking for a tion because we had Oswald in the assassination, but not by me. that this man was questioned about Possibly nobody paid much atten-"Quite a number of officials-official silence to confirm a look- undercover through another man ments, at least a hint of who he divulge his name and passing off by met him. I think this began the incident as "sheer coinci-sometime in the summer of 1963. alike's existence. While refusing to for several months before I actual- might be. Here, the plot begins to living in Dallas; that he had been crook. He claimed to have done " Elsworth admitted that When I finally made contact with and him, I led him to believe I was a some arms smuggling in and out of sometime in the summer of 1963. "I'd tracked this other fellow identical /build, weight, coloring, Oswald" incidents make a con- found to have been "nowhere near with him. I didn't have the impresseveral instances where witnesses that much. And yes, there were sion he'd ever been into Mexico the years.

fied Warren Commission docustraightened out and has a right to privacy." But there is already on thicken. would say only that shortly after the assassination and Mexico, but not when I was dealing | knowledge of Texas arms traffic mission interview with Ellsworth, mention of the Oswald "twin." The dated April 16, 1964. There is no deal of credence in those rumors.

minute, but these were instances the look-alike. I wasn't keeping notes of where he was minute by one's house in North Dallas, and I tions with him, and I'd noted at the Minutemen. One of these times did where witnesses thought they saw stances names came up in my conversathose people. Several of their rifle range. The look-alike knew all involve a group of Minutemen at a Oswald in the company of several assassination that it was actually "But I do remember two inwhere Oswald 0 SEM groups in illegal armaments.

Subsequently, the man gained his release and Ellsworth remained in cannot remember the sentence. violations," but Ellsworth says he tually convicted on "one of the gun occasional contact with him over The Oswald look-alike was even-Ellsworth refused to name him. He record, in two recently declassi-Despite considerable prodding, "He's

One document is a Warren Com-

tions "of value": and lists Ellsworth's three revela almost no information available to nation of the President, there was tivities of Dalkis Cubans and other the Minutemen is the right-wing assassinate the President. been associated with any effort to group in Dallas most likely to have "2.) An organization known as "3.) The Minutemen are closely and H.L. Hunt. tied to General (Edwin) Walker

episode, was attempting to pur-chase arms in Dallas for Alpha 66. Cuban survivor of the Bay of Pigs some detail his undercover efforts DRE." Manuel O. Rodriguez, apparently a result of these undercover activimember of the Minutemen. As a gun shop owner who is an ardent in procuring the arrest of a local Rodriguez is also a member of the ties Agent Ellsworth learned that ·Mr. Ellsworth described in fall of 1963. A Secret Service memorandum said to have attended a meeting wald paying a visit. The DRE, or Cuban Student Directorate, was in dale Street, where an early its Dallas headquarters on Hollan-Castro Cuban groups, maintained where General Walker spoke in the notoriously violent of the anti-Oswald's notebook; again, he is sheriff's report supposedly had Os-Alpha 66, one of the most unit, was interviewed relative time had considered a potential entirely to Manuel Ellsworth, alcohol and tobacco tax danger to the President. On Page dated April 24, 1964, whom the Secret Service at one it reads: "On 1-16-64 Agent devoted any knowledge he might have on the subject. Agent Ellsworth had recently worked in an undercover capacity while gathering evidence against John Thomas Masen (my italics) . . . for violation of National Firearms Act. Agent Ellsworth states that during his association with Masen, Masen had mentioned Rodriguez as being a Cuban who was attempting to buy arms—machine guns, bazookas, and other heavy equipment—from Masen . . . ."

Continued on page 25

Second Oswald

Continued from page 23

John Thomas Masen. Was this the Minutemen gun shop owner? And possibly the Oswald lookalike? For this answer, one must probe still deeper into the cryptic Warren Commission files. Sure enough, buried away in the National Archives is an FBI report dated March 27, 1964. It begins:

"Mr. John Thomas Masen, Owner, Masen's Gun Shop. . . advised he purchased about ten boxes of 6.5mm Mahnlicher-Carrano, Western Cartridge Company, ammunition from Johnny Brinegar in early 1963 and that he sold these 10 boxes to individuals. He stated he was not able to recall the identity of any persons to whom he sold this ammunition . . ."

Strangely, the various government reports on Masen's activities don't overlap. The FBI was seemingly interested in finding the source of ammunition for Oswald's 6.5mm Mannlicher-Carcano rifle. The Secret Service was curious about Masen's anti-Castro associates. The Warren Commission privately noted his connection with the Minutemen, _but published nothing about him.

Putting all this information together, a pattern emerges. Ellsworth's Oswald look-alike was arrested shortly before the assassination; so was Masen, Ellsworth's look-alike had Minutemen connections, traveled in Mexico, and been nabbed on a firearms charge; so had Masen. If Masen was not the Oswald double, he must have had a pretty good idea who was. The question then becomes—were all these connections, including those with anti-Castro groups, merely "sheer coincidence?"

When subsequently questioned about the information he gave the Warren Commission and Secret Service on John Thomas Masen, Frank Ellsworth did a double take.

At first, when I asked if Masen might be the Oswald look-alike, Ellsworth issued a hesitant denial. Then at the very end of the interview, suddenly he became confidential: "Look, you've got me boxed in," he said. "You're trying to get me to tell you something I'm not at liberty to tell without grossly jeopardizing myself and my agency. But if you can find Masen, the answer to what you've been trying to worm out of me will become immediately apparent."

John Thomas Masen is not listed in the Dallas phone book. He does, however, still work here; he is a gunsmith, apparently one of the best in town, operating in the back room of a sporting goods store in a North Dallas shopping center.

According to Frank Ellsworth, the Oswald look-alike had put on about 30 pounds over the years. So, it seemed, had Masen. He was about the same height as Oswald, a stocky, brown-haired, 36-year-old, and the moment we shook nands.

Continued on page 27

Continued from page 25

an uneasy feeling settled over me If you looked closely, you could still see a resemblance. There was no way to be sure, and yet. . . .

"If I saw a picture of Lee Harvey Oswald, I'd probably pick it cut,' he is saying, carefully smoothing some oil along the sight of a rifle. "But I can't really visualize his face. There was one man who used to come into the store-we see all the kooky ones-extremely weird, but. . . but no, I don't think he resembled Lee Harvey Oswald."

It is early evening, but Masen is working late. He talks while he works, adjusting and cleaning one rifle part, then another. When he hears the name of Frank Ellsworth, his eyes flash and his reply is acrid.

"I got set up on that situation. There was an agent from New Mexico who represented himself as a buyer for the Cuban revolution against Castro. I sold him a couple automatic arms. It were a toy, at that time. They entrapped me into buying some parts. They finally dropped all charges except failure to keep proper records. I paid a $200 fine, but they took my firearms license away. And this has cost me an enormous amount of money, not being able to deal in firearms. I recently applied for a presidential pardon, and was turned down."

Had he ever associated with the Minutemen? "I'd been to a couple parties. I knew some of the group. I realized they were gonna try to help take Cuba back and I was very sympathetic to the cause."

What about General Walker? "I met him back there. When things are unpleasant, you block them out. You try to forget. This has cost me $20,000 or $30,000 over the past 12 or 13 years. I don't know if I did any business with his people."

And H. L. Hunt? "Mr. Hunt was a fine man. One of my dear friends lived next door to them. But did I ever work for him? No. Did I ever receive money from him? No. Although I might have said I did at one time. You see, one of my dearest friends was in a sorority with a daughter I met a good deal of the Hunts. I have some friends who were under the impression that the Hunts poured a lot of money in their coffers.'

For a moment, Masen pauses. He gives me a long probing look, as if he knows precisely what I'm driving at, "Look, as I told them back then, if there was a Minutemen situation I'd been connected with, I couldn't have told 'em anyway. My life wouldn't be worth a penny. Realistically, that's what it amounted to.

"You know," he goes on, "I wouldn't be in your shoes. Going around asking people about the Cubans, the Kennedy assassination. Why should people talk to you? There's no way they can do anything but lose.

"One thing you should remember," says John Thomas Masen, "what may be a living to you"-there is another pause, another long look-"can be a life to them.

"But if you want my opinion, to think the assassination was the act of one man, well, it'd be a very hard thing to do. I've got some friends who are top marksmen who say it couldn't have happened like they said. I really don't believe this was the brainstorm of one deranged man. I think it was the spphisticated work of someone great deal of messey, who could buy a life." heat a seem [