Dear Mr. Bruce,

Sorry not to have been able to respond to your letter of 8 24 earlier.

We haven't moved. The rural routes have been renumbered.

I fear your direct approach when you saw the man resembling Oswald freaked him out.

If you see him again why not try to engage him in conversation about whether or not it has been embarrassing to have people ask him about the resemblance, something like that, innocuous and not unfriendly. You might then get him to talk to you.

There is no doubt, there was at least one person who looked like Oswald haunting that part of town, particularly the Walgreens Drug Store on Canal Street and throughout the Quarter.

But I'm inclined to think that anyone with a criminal involvement would have disappeared or done something to change his appearance.

However, if you learn anything else I'd like to know.

I stay pretty busy and can't always answer all letters, but I do read them, the clippings people sometimes send, etc., and keep them even if I do not have time to write back.

Thanks very much.

Sincerely,

Harold Weisberg

Dear Mr. Weisberg:

You may remember I wrote to you,
Several years <sup>ago</sup> after reading your book
"Oswald in New Orleans - Case for Conspiracy with The CIA -"

Well, on Friday August 22nd, 1975,
at about 3:45 PM, I saw "The Second Oswald"
in The Woolworth Dept. Store, 900 Canal St, New Orleans - or someone made to look like a Second Oswald!!!

Anyway, although I never met the Slain Oswald, in person, This Man looked like Oswald's Twin Brother, I swear to God - like his Twin Brother, from the photos of the Slain Oswald's son.
He was of medium height, had a Sallow Complexion, although it was browner than I imagined Oswald to be; looked to be about Oswald's age if he were alive today; and was dressed in blue pants and a blue sport shirt!!! (over)

I heard Mark Lane SP Lab at the University of New Orleans fear in April 74 & with his films he was by Commisars.

He was talking to one of the Women Bakery ~~clerk~~ at the Woolworth Cafeteria, where I had stopped to eat, before going to work.

She quite obviously knew him as they were having a friendly chat. <sup>I'm going to try</sup> <sup>her his name if she</sup>
<sup>will</sup>

Finally, he got up & went over to the <sup>Hotel</sup>
Woolworth information booth. <sup>She</sup>
<sup>Doesn't</sup>
<sup>know</sup>
<sup>on if</sup>
<sup>she</sup>
<sup>knows</sup>
Feeling like Special Agent James Bond

007. I got up & quickly washed up to him. I casually asked "The Second Oswald" "What's your Name?"
He would ~~not~~ tell me. He Refused.

He claimed up tight, like he was hiding something!! Not being a policeman or a Security Guard, I could not arrest him for him NOT giving his name to me.

Duty, what a coincidence & on a Friday, at 22nd, in New Orleans yet, too. What do you suggest we do, Mr. Weisberg? Are our "suspects" coming out in the open, at least, believing they are in the clear? What should I do? The Second Oswald is alive & well & in University Place • New Orleans, Louisiana 70140

New Orleans & I believe saw him & he knows that I believe he is a Second Oswald.

Very Sincerely yours,
Richard J. Bruce
