Dear Mr. Parks,

Thanks for your 5/20. And you are welcome to use that letter any way you want.

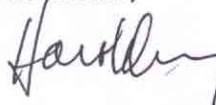

If you have where Hue described himself as a fascist I'd like to add that to my file on him. Most of what I wrote about him and Foreman was edited out of Frame-Up. I suppose because it was longer than desired.

It was John Christian. And even when I had payment for the shipping he did not answer after saying he would ship what remained if I did that. If you can learn from the news-book outlet where they got those copies it would be of interest. Nothing I can do but I'm ~~entirely~~ curious.

Helanson's book is worse than trash. It misinforms, disenforms and lies. And it has a childish concepts of the spooks. Who had nothing at all to do with Ray. Did you notice that Helanson merely assumes Ray's guilt?

Real Scholar! And how brave a man!

Thanks and best wishes,

Harold Weisberg

Dear Mr Weisberg,

I was delighted to get a straight prompt answer. Thank you. This gives me the excuse to amend my earlier note, to let you know I actually read FRAME UP, slowly & carefully, a couple of years ago. Liked it a lot. Good editing job too-very readable.

One of the results was that I started collecting early Wm B. Huie titles, on the theory that writers of disinformation will contradict or reveal themselves in their other work, especially their early ones. And yes, this holds true for Huie: in the self-written blurb for his first novel he characterizes himself as a fascist. Another early book is purely militarist.. George Macmillan is condemned by (as you point out) his alliance with Priscilla.. Clay Blair Jr is my favorite; he's been entrusted (by establishment publishers) with the most sensitive biographies, but the rest of the time he turns out schlocky action thrillers.

..I hope that the "Jonn Christian" you mention as copping 5,000 copies of OSWALD IN NEW ORLEANS is not the same guy who wrote, with Wm Turner, the pretty respectable account of the RFK slaying.. About two years ago I made a purchase of five pristine copies from an elderly conspiracy buff, who had got them as remainders, very cheaply, at a new-book outlet in San Francisco. He's still around; I see him at this or that function.

Depending on condition, & my confidence in the salability of the book at the given time, I charge from 10. to 25. for OSWALD IN N.O. Quite often they go to dealers, to whom I offer a standard 20% discount. I like to sell to dealers, and it's a good thing I like it, cause I havent much choice.

I've sold a couple of copies of FRAME UP at 30., not knowing you had the original edition at, roughly, the original price.. It's a hard sell though--people are still struggling with the Kennedys, with not much energy to spare for King. And as you note in the text of the book, the black community is not about to take on the problem.

Melanson's book appears a worthy gloss on FRAME UP.

Mark Lane's is nowhere more plainly self-condemned than in his attacks on the book, in the thing he coauthored with Dick Gregory.

Again, thanks for the straightforward stuff. Quite a contrast with the treatment Random House editors gave me when I called up to talk about HARLOT'S GHOST. That book was sure killed, with the help of course of the passivity of the US public.

PS: I'm certainly going to save your letter, which has useful leads for anyone who might eventually pursue the history of assassination researcher publications. I'm not about to do it myself, but instead be a resource station for whomsoever might tackle it.

Altho I'm not a writer who can undertake book-length projects, I still like to babble on in print, as you can see from my catalog. I want to quote, or I will want to quote, from you letter next time I list OSWALD IN N.O. Is that OK? --enclosed find a copy of your letter to me, so you can see what you said.

Dear Mr. Parks,

There were probably more copies of Oswald in New Orleans in the Bay area than anywhere else. A man named John Christian got 5,000 copies without paying for them—ever—and sold what he could. I do not know what happened to the rest. I was to have gotten them but he never sent them I suppose he sold them for what he could get.

I've heard of copies bringing as much as $75 and I've seen them listed at $25.

Canyon is a name taken by Parallax when Pocket Books, which distributed for them, refused to. If Parallax had spoken to me I'd have told them to expect it. Pocket treated me very well but did not dare publish it. It was approved with enthusiasm all the way up to Boris Shinkin, their majority owner. But he capitulated and feared it would, as he said, "be the red flag under the charging bull" of the Department Of Justice. Pocket had published the fraudulent "Calories Don't Count" and about six were already under indictment. Shinkin did not want to be the seventh! Who would have? Not I! But Pocket tried to get Doubleday to publish it. They came close. (That was Whiteflash I)

~~Frame-Up was not on the list of books for sale anywhere.~~

I know of no organized distribution anywhere.

Frame-Up is legitimately scarce. Only 5,000 were printed. No ads or promotions.

Some stores and dealers sell all our books as out-of-print or scarce. They charge what they think they can get.

Thanks and best wishes,

Harold Weisberg
