Dear Kari,

Thanks for your card. Hope you have a fine holiday season.

I'm glad you are in a position to make a critical examination of the Plame case. That killing also was a great tragedy. They all are. I mean with him, too, more than with most. Great man.

At first I had the impression that your police were doing the kind of job our police did not do. Then there were doubts. I fear they will linger.

The 25th anniversary brought nothing new and truthful and substantial to light. Not that I know of. TV was rubbish or nostalgia except for a single fine documentary done by a young friend as his master's thesis at the Univ. of Maryland. He won a prestigious award with it, the "Golden Eagle" in the historical division of CINE's annual competition. Called "Reasonable Doubt," examines the single-bullet theory and disproves it. Shown on cable here.

If anything on your police bugging scandal appeared in the papers here I did not see it. Quite scandalous! I hope the police responsible were held to account.

Sorry about my typing, never good. I've had successful surgery on my better eye but have not recovered full use of it.

When you have time, and for archival purposes, if you know anything about the Swedish and other European commemoration of the 25th JFK assassination anniversary, I'd like to know to have it in the files to be deposited at the local college, a good one.

Our reports on this from anywhere

Thanks and have a good year,

Harold Weisberg

Dear Harold Weisberg

You haven't heard from me for a long time. I am still as interested in the Kennedy case as before, but during the past year I have become more and more involved in critically examining the Olof Palme murder. To my surprise there is a similar pattern here. The police hasn't been conducting a serious investigation. Instead they have tried to find scapegoats and cover up any real leads. A couple of hours ago it was announced on the news that the police is suspected of having bugged the D.A.'s office that was in charge of the murder investigation.

This is just an example of the oddities happening in Sweden today. Karu

I wish you and your wife

God Jul

Gott Nytt År

(Merry Christmas and Happy New Year
in Swedish.)
