Dear Harold,

Well, Nikki and I had a great time out at your place. I have nominated your lovely wife, Lil, for sainthood. Having to put up with all the Kennedy traffic pouring over threshold on a regular basis certainly qualifies. You can also complement the chef at your friendly Korean restaurant for a fine meal. My seafood dish was far beyond any "twenty minute" special from the local Chinese restaurants here in Dallas. You probably noticed Nikki was not as adventurous. I remember when we were in San Francisco last year, her fear of being slipped some exotic piece of meat or a strange vegetable. She is usually satisfied with a nice Chenin Blanc and a cheeseburger. At any rate it was terrific.

Before I left, I promised some more White documents plus the "tramp" arrest records. Most I will photocopy next week. However, in the interim I thought you might like to see two items. My favorite is the Matsu letter of agreement with Ricky, Tony, Geneva and Andy Burke. Pay close attention to the wording of #1.

Best wishes,

Dave Perry
