Dear Dave,

Having reason now to believe that among the many lies of that practised professional liar, Gerald Posner, he is now lying about his legal education, and frustrated in not being able to find anyone who can do the relatively simple library research where the standard directories are available, thinking about this I wondered if you have in the course of your work access to back issues of the "Martindale, Hubbell directories? If you do I'll very much appreciate xeroxes of the annual listings of him, ^{beginning with} for the first two years of his "Wall Street" firm, going back, I suppose, to 1980. He passed the bars in 1979. It does seem to me unusual that he linked up with what he describes as a Wall Street firm right out of a small, Erie, Pa. law school. And I'd like to know all those in that firm. Some firms and some individuals ^{in them} were CIA.

Something else seems unusual: he left there after two years, as he told an interviewer, to start his own firm. At 31? He had those resources? From a family in which his father is, in his words, "a union official?"

And then, he says pro bono, ^{he} filed against the Menegle family and the German government only, as again he says, "Nothing came of that."

While it may be that none of what appears to be suspicious is, it is all rather unusual, I think.

I doubt that any libraries there have the appropriate "Who's Who to check or such writers' directories as Contemporary Authors.

When his Menegle suit failed he then did his Mengele book. With what I know of him it is not to wonder only, there may be ~~at~~ a reason to suspect that the suit was a means to the book, That was his first of four earlier books. I think it appears in 1986

I do hope that the insurance companies down there have reason to have on hand old issues of the law directory!

Thanks for anything you can do, with best to all,
