Dear Frank,

Herewith the Minuteman story on the Village bombing. It includes the Cathy Wilkerson notebook story, too. I believe that somewhere I have their crosshairs mark in the form of a threat to the addressee or recipient.

For all out talk, I forgot the most relevant other Minuteman material I have if you want a longer piece than this will make with the available pix.

They have penetrated young groups of the left other than the bombers. I have the lists they have printed. They are doing this in instalments. My source is several months behind and I must get around to writing him again. Those already sent members are all in the midwest.

From another source I cannot reveal and whose dependability I cannot equate with the one from whom I've gotten what I've described to you, of which the enclosed is but a fraction, I've gotten this account of how their list was made in a single university. Without consulting my files I think it was Kansas (remember the flap there?).

The attractive young wife of a Minuteman laid all the militants she could entice. She got them to talk and built up that particular list, what might be called horizontal infiltration.

In this Illinois list, there is reason to believe they had access to police sources.

As of my most recent information, the group is fractioned, since de Puga was jailed. A guy named Stephens, near here, has recently been threatened by the originals. I have their threat to him. He operates in Prince George's County, Md.

I have no knowledge of who the infiltrator in the Village group was. However, I do have a hunch - and it is now no more than a hunch - that he is in Pittsburgh. I have someone working on that.

Next time you are here you might want to look at what I think could make the Anarchist's Cookbook look like pink tea. We can add to the really dependable data the story of the means by which a roster of American Storm Troopers has been built while they were being informed of the technical skills. I have a few FBI reports that would illuminate this, a few pictures, etc., of real people and some of their histories. The man who did it is the graduate of two Army intelligence schools, has been active in Latin American rightist revolutionary efforts, etc. Could something that pays well, like Playboy, go for this kind of thing?

Best,
