Dear Mr. Weisberg:

Finally, my interview with you bore fruit, although as you can see, the result was not what I had originally intended. Rather than go into the mundane details of how plans change or are changed, I will just say that I believe I preserved the integrity, importance and dedication of you and your work.

These are confusing and complicated times, difficult for newspaper writers to keep up with, let alone explain. By using your work as an example of why there is ample justification for mistrusting the government, I intended to show that serious, concerned citizens need not be lumped with the current crop of crackpots who seem to dominate the media. I hope my intentions succeeded.

I hope that you are able to continue your efforts and that you and Mrs. Weisberg are faring well.

Sincerely,

Bob Hoover
