Dear Mr. Lawrence,

It is kind of you to keep me posted.

My camera store has located the Bell and Howell camera and is haggling with a woman who wants to trade but thinks it is worth the price of a new one. At some point he will pay her too much and the camera will be mine.

I have completed "Coward in New Orleans: CIA Whitewash" and am on the other writing of the series. Although I will go ahead with what I plan with the Zapruder-duplicate, I will not want it to appear ahead of the paper book, which is several months off.

When I have made the film I told you about, I will let you know to see if you are interested.

Again, thanks for your courtesy.

Sincerely,

Harold Weisberg

Dear Mr. Weisberg:

I have had our photo department tracing down the Bell and
Howell camera model you are seeking, but with no luck so far.
I will keep you posted.

I still don't know when I will be East, but will inform you.

Cordially,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Michael Laurence". The signature is written in a cursive, flowing style with a large initial "M".
