sassinations and it thoring that no FBI agents l of 1963 and concluding he found enjoyable was needed the income and ie 8, he was reminded of ford to provide for Maher to the New Orleans ved long enough in Louised to treat her free of learly an hour, Lee left American emphasis on ntry," he yelled at Ma-You can't have a baby e saw his anger mixed ted his distaste for caphim saying anything at shortly after the hosa bought him the Presg here."55 than ever on politics. Communist party literchapter of Fair Play for ls to "those fighters for aders of the American 6, he put his activism reet Wharf, where the ocked. There, he dis-d my brother, I killed my n in 1992, that people who g to pry information from also sent the Hall-Davis while at Jaggars-Chilese lawyer for the Defense ld requested five months nt. Posnur wints net in huth peliil got one of the Mudfulls and that in peliil got one of the tributed his Fair Play for Cuba propaganda. In the late afternoon, the officer of the deck aboard the ship complained to harbor patrolman Girod Ray, who found Oswald and asked if he had permission to distribute the leaflets.⁵⁷ Oswald said he did not need it, UMURLOG. and would distribute his pamphlets wherever he desired. Ray told him that he was on port authority property and without authorization he had to leave, but Oswald argued with him. Finally, when Ray threatened to arrest him, he left.⁵⁸ Oswald was exhilarated by his demonstration, later boasting in a letter to Fair Play president Vincent Lee, "We also manged to picket the fleet when it came in and I was surprised at the number of officers who were interested in our literature."⁵⁹*

Oswald's interest in Cuba now included Marina. He asked her if she liked Cuba and "Uncle Fidel" and said that his demonstrating "will help make people be on the side of Cuba. Do you want them attacking little Cuba?"⁶⁰ He pasted a photo of Castro, clipped from the Soviet magazine Ogonyok, on their living room wall.

On Monday, June 24, he visited the U.S. passport office and applied for a new passport (one that he never used before his death). His passport had expired exactly one year earlier. Oswald said he intended to travel as a tourist, starting in October, for three months to a year. Destinations included England, France, Germany, Holland, Finland, Poland, Italy, and the USSR.⁶¹ He listed the Lykes shipping line, the same he took during his 1959 defection, as his means of transportation. He also gave his date of marriage to Marina as the nonexistent April 31, 1961, and said his occupation was "photographer." The New Orleans office issued his passport the following day.⁶²

^{*}Oswald used "we" when writing to the Fair Play national headquarters since he often wanted to impress them that his local chapter had attracted more volunteers than just him. Officer Ray said Oswald was alone on the day he confronted him on the wharf.

^{}Since Oswald was a defector, was the overnight processing for his passport unusual? Jim Marrs says that the ease with which Oswald obtained his passport is key evidence "pointing to Oswald's involvement with spy work" (Crossfire, pp. 189–90). But only a few months earlier, in order to speed up passport applications, the New Orleans office had instituted a state-of-the-