Dear Chris,

While I am disappointed my letter of March 9^C elicited no reaction from you, I remain with the hope that someone will at some time be willing to address the record of the media as I suggested when there is solid information with which to do that.

I had hoped you might consider an article for the CJR.

When I was able to speak at colleges and universities the JFK assassination rivaled Viet Nam as the cause of forcefully-expressed discontent with both the government and the media.

I have a few copies of Case Open now, if you'd like to read it.

If you want an independent judgement I think that Jeffrey Frank on the Post can give you one.

I add that increasingly in recent years this disenchantment is reflected in my mail.

When those supposed to be critics of the media will not raise questions who can or will, and if it is not done, what does that mean?

Including ^{to} the media interest in recapturing some of its lost credibility?

Sincerely,

Harold Weisberg
