A fully documented and compelling account of the hour-by-hour events during the Russian invasion of Czechoslovakia last August. Outraged by the official—and totally false—Russian version of the invasion, the Institute of History of the Czechoslovak Academy of Sciences compiled eyewitness testimony that reveals the desperate political maneuvering, the infamous collaboration with Soviet agents, and the despair and defiance of Czech citizens. The result is an unforgettable record of a people betrayed, who could still cry out in their suffering: "Our history is filled with truths and lies. But this lie and this violence we shall never forget. We cannot. We must not." "THE CZECH BLACK BOOK," Robert Littell writes, "is stunningly unique. . . . It is the victim's description of the crime, recorded while the crime was being committed."
