

April 20, 1969

Mr. John Barron
The Reader's Digest
1730 Rhode Island Ave., nw.
Washington, D.C.

Dear Mr. Barron,

Eud Fensterwald tells me you told him several weeks ago that you have returned the documents I loaned you six months ago. I have not yet received them and I do and have needed them.

For the longest time after speaking to you I felt I was precluded from offering this material to anyone else. Now someone has come to me for it.

I am, of course, sorry that you didn't go for it, particularly now that my work in this area has moved far forward.

Also, I hear from others working in the field (but having no new material) that the "Digest" is said to be looking for stories on the assassination(s).

I have a considerable amount of data on the King assassination, entirely unused and not consistent with the official accounts, in and out of court.

Because my need for the material I loaned you is urgent, I would appreciate hearing from you. If you have not yet sent it, you could save me time by phoning so I could ask you to send it directly to the reporter who has asked for it.

Sincerely yours,

Harold Weisberg