

4/12/74

Dear Arvin,

Started to write you earlier but as the today progressed there were a number of things to which I had to attend immediately.

So, now that I am about to leave to pick my wife up, herewith two things for which you asked, a carbon of the draft of my Russell story and copies of two of the items of which I did not have extra copies with me. By mailing them this evening I hope you have them Monday.

There is more like the copies. One item in itself is more than enough to make a perjury rap impossible to beat, given an honest indictment and an honest trial. Not that these enclosed are not more than enough by themselves if you know the testimony!

Making copies of the backstopping of the ~~Russell~~ Russell story would take a long time with the slow and old machine I have. However, if you want it, I'll take the time.

His letters are not as numerous. Perhaps six. But to his dying day he regretted not having enough time to participate in what I was doing. He never stopped encouraging it. Of course he was busy. But before he knew of his cancer he knew he had emphysema and that in itself slows a man down.

I enjoyed and appreciate your (plural) warmth and hospitality. Very much.

When I told my wife that you and Maggie seemed to like the afghan and the idea of her giving it, quiet and cautious in such matters as she is, she was encouraged to decide to give another one to someone to whom, unknown to me, she has been debating with herself for about a year!

Good luck with your new problem.

Best,