Dear Marty,

The only fast way I could send you some of the pictures mentioned was this inadequate dry-copier method. On one sheet you'll find pictures of a little building behind the concrete pergola on the grassy knoll with a very visible peephole, a la wild-west stockade. It makes a shot from inside possible. There is a bench on which an accomplice could sit and say here they come, etc. There are some existing pictures showing strange things right in this area, including several LIFE photos Rickerby took and didn't know what they could have showed until Sprague told them. The other is of an entrance into the storm-sewer system that is normally dry, on the grassy knoll, behind the stockade fence, where there are indications there was an opening at the bottom of the fence. This series shows a hole in the sewer entrance more than big enough for a man. The man who took these for me was going to get a smaller man he could trust to go inside with flash equipment. The grate is open, closed, etc. Note the steam pipe (everybody ran to, Weitzman got burned on, is very visible. This is the point on which attention was focused, where nothing was found, and an excellent possible explanation why. Hurriedly, and you still haven't sent me those pictures. Life will not use anything not an assassination picture, which is fine. They're working on it again. And you were to write me a note on the rumors you've heard.

Dear Martin,

As per our phone conversation today, here are the two rough drafts, both of which I'll want to add to and both of which require editing. I also have appropriate documents that I'll not be able to include; ~~in~~ my letter to J. Edgar Hoover on the suppression of the ~~sp~~ spectographic analysis and the letters from the archive. I charge suppression and will prove more than I charge.

Please return these as soon as you Xerox them. Ask if you have any questions.

I also have the list of what was transferred to the Archive.

Merry Xmas
