Dear Karen and "arry.

12/29/76

Great thati" ary has a job and that between you you can do what ${ }^{\text {a }}$ asked. Lot me know what if anything you need. If you do not have the books I presume the library does.

I think I suggested code identipications on the cards. If not, ask.
It occurss to me that if you can both work on it you may have theme to type the finished job. his would further reduce FBI excuses in that they oould have more than one person consulting the index if they could zerox ito,

The aame codes could be used on the consolidated index when typed.
Gradually I am acqusring many, many pages, at a rate of more than 500 a weaks But the obliterastions do make a problerb This can help reduce them and it can certainly reduce the frivolous, harassing obliterations. Not all. They even mask the name Ray.

If you will not be able to type and rpoofread the cards onto $81 / 2 \mathrm{x} 11$ paper please lot me know. If you can it would be better to send that first, holding the card back until I have received the typed sheet.

It is wonderfori that when 参ary did got a joe it is one in which she can be helpful to people in need and genorally 1enored people.

Your experience of doing the kind of work you did under time pressures has probably taught you much.

If I was not explicit enough in the earlier letter on what books we want the indexes carded from and how to identify each on the wards you make Prom memory I'll go over it again. Gerold Fcank's An American "eath, preferably hardback but if not the Bantam paperbacik. Win Bradford Hule's He Slew the Dreamer (Delacorte, no paperbeck),George HoMillan, The taking of an Assassin, current, Jittle, Brown, hardback only. Jim Bishop, mycopy gone, I think The Day ${ }^{\text {Ing }}$ Died, available both hard and paperback.

I think I gace you auggestions for code identifications. Just so they do not confuse with the initials of my books, abou will do. सither the initials of the authors or of the books. Clay Blair ${ }^{1}$ s in unindezed and is not worth indexing.

Some of the tapes and clips you sent essuming more importance.
You are both wonderful. Thanks, and my you all have a good year,
sincerely,

Dear Harold.
I talked to Mary a she sand she would be glad to work on the indexes. Somehow, we met the deadline on our document production, So I wort be working overtime again for at least several weeks. That gives me some free true $m$ which I can help Mary with the cards o do whatever else youid like me to do. Just because I'm working, dint hesitate to ask me to do something. For the most part, my evenings + weekends are free.

Yorill be happy to know that Mary has also joined the ranks of the employed. She got a job as a teacher a house mother at a home foe retarded children. Shes really exited because that', what she wanted to do. Her job provides a good but of free true also, so between the two of us we should have no problem with the indexes. Just let me know exactly what you want done.

Best, Karen
