Federal Judges Study Move to Drop Shaw Suit

A three-judge federal court has taken under advisement a motion to dismiss a suit by Clay L. Shaw, who seeks to block his trial on a charge of conspiring to kill President John F. Kennedy.

The motion was filed by District Attorney Jim Garrison and assistant DAs James L. Alcock and Charles R. Ward, who are accused by Shaw of prosecuting him on a false charge and violating his constitutional rights.

SHAW WANTS Garrison barred from bringing him to trial in Criminal District Court.

The motion and three others were argued yesterday before Federal District Judges James A. Comiskey and Frederick J. R. Heebe and United States Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals Judge Robert A. Ainsworth Jr.

One of the other motions asks that Ward and Alcock be dismissed as defendants in the suit.

The other two motions, filed by Shaw's attorneys, ask that U.S. Attorney General Ramsay Clark be made a party to the suit and that Alcock and other Garrison aides be compelled to answer questions by Shaw's attorneys.

U.S. Attorney Louis LaCour appeared to object to making Clark a party to the proceedings.

IF THE SUIT is heard, Alcock said, the DA's staff will be required to present all of its evidence that it would present in the criminal trial itself in order to show that the case is not a fraud.

Edward F. Wegmann, one of Shaw's lawyers, told the court that the sole purpose of the prosecution of Shaw is to provide Garrison with a forum for attacking the Warren Commission, which concluded that there was no evidence of a conspiracy to kill Kennedy and that Lee Harvey Oswald was the lone assassin.

The panel gave no indication when it would rule on the motions.
