Dear Qjin,

Welcome to the ranks of the liberated. And, hopefully, the free. If you didn't have to wait two years I'd offer you a chance to get even. Oply you'd not survive it and practise law.

Odd thing, I'd just thought of you twice in a couple of days whwn Alan Fitzgibbon told you you are taking early retirement. It can't but he happier and I hope it is also prosperous.

First time was when working on my brief (I'm still pro se but I'm trying to get counsel) and I got to thinking how those subhumans with whom you were associated tried to portray me as anti-government and all the unpaid things (most of which you do not know) came to mind and with that Joe Borcin.

Then I was rereading Smith's Memorandum, precious parts are, and I thought how in the past you might have enjoyed it, the past coming to mind with this. That great and compassionate soul wound up saying that out of consideration for my pro se status he reviewed the case record. (Which is more than a file drawer in size.) How much he learned, there and elsewhere, is reflected in his Memorandum where he efers to the FOIA case for the Dallas and New Orleans JFK records as for King assassination records and (three times, no less) for those of the New Haven office.

If in your freedom you ever take a drive in the country, c'mon up. And if it is warm enough, bring swimming trunk.

I do hope your future holds much that was denied you in the recent past, and that you enjoy it.

Best wishes,

Harold
