Dear Earl,

I've been working on another epilogie for Waketh based on the suppression of that fine statement by all those admirals and generals. I had odds and endsof it on paper before I started the writing yesterday. When it is finished I'll get it retyped. Today \perp r ad and corrected that beginning. While I do not believe it is the kind of handle "r. "oldberg had in mind I encloses it on the chance you think it might mean something to him and to give you an idea of what I'll be saying.

It should be apparent to most readers that if the major medi/can come close to suppresseing entirely what this unprecedented collection of more than 60 admirals and generals (all retired) from fifteen countries agreed on almost anything can be suppressed.

Like fact about the JFK assassination and books written about it.

I hope you've gotten from Bill the epilogue I did write some time ago. If you did not I'm sure he'll want to send it to you in you let him know. If you'd rather I can stack him but it will be faster if you do.

Haroly
