Dear Earl,

The Groden manuscript was late reaching you because my letter to my sister was somehow delayed in the mails. I asked her to send it to you without correction of the typos, etc. Later I'll be going over it and making other corrections and if you'd like you can then have a more corrected copy.

I now have and can xerox for you or in a few days, if that would be better, can lend you the computer disk of the manuscript of what I did off and to those La Fontaine exploiters and commercializers, if you saw the Winfrey Show on which they were able to use Marina Oswald Porter to promote their book, which has not a thing to do with the assassination and is otherwise, at its better moments, ludicrous.

On that show Winfrey made it clear she never believed the official story and that she does believe there was a conspiracy. If I were able to travel I'd try to get a copy of this La Fontaine manuscript to her.

I am not sending any of this to Hirsh Goldberg but if you'd like to lend him anything. I do not want even to appear to be between the two of you and I do not want to give him anything he does not want.

No news on when the woman who has been typing the manuscript of what I wrote about retired colonel Fletcher Frouty and his book will come to pick up the few and simple corrections remaining but once she does it should take only a short while to post them and that will be done.

Bill Neichter has sent you the Afterword I wrote for Waketh. I'm well into a much longer one, based on what was disclosed after that was written.

Thanks and best wishes,

Harold Weisberg
