

A 32-page new attack on the Warren findings appears in the current issue of Computers and Automation, a monthly published in Newtonville, Mass. This was written by Richard E. Sprague, an engineer and computer expert, who is president of Personal Data Services, Hartsdale, N. Y.

Mr. Sprague says he has collected more than 200 photographs and looked at 200 more, out of 510 taken before, during or just after the assassination (counting any movie sequence as only a single photograph). He urges computer analyses.

He holds that at least three gunmen and probably four fired six shots at President Kennedy. He contends that Oswald took part in a conspiracy but did no shooting.

His article includes a picture that he interprets as showing a man just after the assassination "with radio in pocket and S-shaped antenna hanging down."

Mr. Sprague says this man told District Attorney Jim Garrison of New Orleans he was "the radio communicator among the rifle teams."

Mr. Sprague also says that pictures show a "man with the umbrella," first holding it closed as the Kennedy car neared and then holding it "open and low over his head" shortly before the first shot, despite the sunny day.

Next, he says the umbrella is seen raised about two feet higher shortly before the last shot, and then it is folded a few seconds after the last shot. Mr. Sprague suggests the man may have been signaling as "on-the-scene commander."
