Culprits Spreading Deliberate Confusion among Public

Is there really an oil shortage? And if there is, who is to blame? These are troubling questions in the minds of most Americans.

Much of the confusion has been deliberately created by the government and the media.

In the first place, America's fuel crisis is genuine. It is not just

With the fighting temporarily quieted down in the Middle East and the Israelis grudgingly with-drawing from a small alice of their seized Arab land, it may seem that America has successfully avoided being drawn into a Third World War on behalf a trick dreamed up by the oil companies to make more money.

Even if the government seized all the big oil companies and operated them with government workers, there would still be an oil shortage. In fact, there would still be a shortage if the Arab nations had not stopped selling us meir or, atmough it would not be nearly so bad as it is. For a long time Americans have been recklessly and wastefully increasing their consumption of energy while depleting their easily recoverable natural energy resources. Americs still has wast resources. America still has vast energy reserves, in the form of coal, oil shale, natural gas, and petroleum, but in recent years consumption has cutstripped the resources can be economically exploited. Consequently, it became cheaper to import some of the oil we need from abroad, principally from the Middle East, than to expand our own petroleum production capacity. Even with imports, however, there was barely enough oil to meet America's demands, and some shortages were beginning to make themselves felt a year

Zionist Blackmail

Then came the most recent phase of the Arab-Israeli war last October, in which the powerful pro-Israel lobby in this country blackmailed the government into undertaking a massive and ex-pensive airlift of American weapons and munitions to Israel. Hundreds of American cargo aircraft were landed right behind the Israeli front lines in occupied Egypt during the height of the fighting, constituting an act of war by the United States against war by the United States against the Arab nations.

The easily understandable reaction of the Arabs was to cease selling their perfoleum to America. After all, that petroleum was being used to fuel the American industrial machinery which was producing the wearons which were being the weapons which were being used by Jews to kill Arabs.

Deliberate Deceit

Before the arms airlift began U.S. officials who had been "bought" by Zionists tried to convince the American people that if the Arabs responded with an oil cutoff it really wouldn't make much difference. Senator

Henry Jackson (D-WA) falsely claimed that America received only five per cent of her oil from the Arab nations, and we could See CRISIS, p. 8

With his popularity at a low point because of the Westernia recalitions. of the Watergate revelations, Nixon would not give any backtalk to the people who were really running the country.

Reassessing Nixon's chances in the light of more recent developments, we must conclude that the odds are now about even as to whether he finishes out his term or not. It could go either

All-American Replacement

Most dangerous for Nixon is the vice-presidency of Gerald Ford. Ford is unimaginative, unam-bitious by Washington political standards, and not particularly bright.

Furthermore, he has an all-American-boy image: he is a former collegiate football player from Nebraska with a good military record in the Navy during World War II, an at-tractive family, and no out-standing scandals to mar his long career in Congress.

Most important, he is a longtime shabbas goy (i.e., a Gentile who fronts for Jewish interests). Practically his first public statement upon being nominated for the vice-presidency was that he favors full U.S. military and economic support for Israel. Since then he has been a frequent guest speaker at Zionist fundguest speaker at Zionist fund-raising affairs, including the recent annual banquet of the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith, the Zionist secret-police

A careful observer, studying the puzzling behavior of the media masters in the whole Nixon-Watergate affair, might come to the conclusion that the molders of public opinion have no desire to restore public con-fidence in the government any time soon; that it is their intention instead to continue un-dermining public confidence, sowing the seeds of disillusionment and alienation, and stirring the kettle of public frustration, disorder, and chaos.

Indeed, there has always been a strong Bolshevik streak in the Jewish character: an apparently instinctive drive to attack the institutions and mores of their hosts, to destroy all authority and hosts, to destroy all automy man all order, to act as a ferment of social decomposition and national decay among the Gentile nations. This drive has manifested itself time and again through 4,000 years of Jewish history, usually resulting in a holocaust for both the Jews and Afterward, the disappointed Kissinger expressed the view to members of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, that the defense of the ill-gotten Jewish empire in the Middle East is a much more invertes to freelen. empire in the Middle East is a much more important foreign policy objective for America than maintaining our mutual-defense pact against Soviet aggression with the other nations of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. Civil rights for prisoners, sobilition of the death penalty, and related matters have con-critisted one of the integrinal and related matters have con-stituted one of the principal apheres of activity of see-liberal seasmers during the last several pears, and yet they have, through their own deliberate efforts, made of our jalls places of terror and torment worse than any medieval dungeon.

The basic problem is racial integration. Although Negroes constitute only about one-eighth of the U.S. population, they commit 60 per cent of all murchers, half of all foreible rapes and aggravated assaults, and two-thirds of robberies, according to the F.B.I.'s Uniform Crime Report of Consequently in most Reports. Consequently, in most areas of the country — par-ticularly in our larger cities jail inmates are preponderantly

There was a time when prison personnel, motivated by humanitarian considerations as well as the desire to maintain order, kept their Black and White prisoners separated. The reformers, however, decided that was a "racist" practice, and it was a "rachad to go.

Lawauits were brought by Philip Hirschkop of the American Civil Liberties Union and others, which eventually forced all the nation's fallers to racially mix their prisoners. The result has been a continuing nightmare for White jail inmates.

Prisons have never been very pleasant places. The food and

But there is nothing on earth or in hell to compare with the experience a white man must undergo when he is shoved into an iron cage with a dozen or so Nesrro with a dozen or so Negro criminals and the door is slammed and locked behind him.

Savage beatings and stompings are routine. Far worse, however, is the sexual abuse and other forms of humiliation inflicted on White prisoners. Mass rape, often preceded by a slitting of the victim's anal sphincter muscle with a razor blade, has become so commonplace that even local newspapers don't usually bother to report it, except in unusual

One such case which made its way into the press was that of a young, White war protester. The 27-year-old Quaker, Robert 27-year-old Quaker, scorest Martin, Jr., was arrested during a protest in front of the White House last August and placed in the District of Columbia jail pending a court hearing.

During his two-day stay in jail

he was raped more than 50 times by Black prisoners. The atrocity only came to the attention of the public when young Martin broke down in court and told the judge he was terrified of being sent

Other White prisoners are regularly beaten to an unresisting jelly by gangs of Blacks and then forced to commit fellatio, lick toilets clean with heir tongues, and otherwise degrade themselves. Their at-tackers are generally not homosexuals but simply Blacks looking for a chance to relieve their rather primitive and un-discriminating sexual urges and make "Whitey" suffer at the same time.

Eyen in jails where guards sympathize with the plight of White prisoners, there is little they can do for them. Minimum Wage Laws:

Worker Protection or "Socialism"?

Since the Fair Labor Standards Act was passed by Congress in 1938, establishing a minimum legal hourly wage of 25 cents for American workers engaged in interstate commerce, dozens of other minimum-wage laws and amendments have been enacted. The trend of this legislation has been to steadily raise the minimum legal wage while ex-minimum legal wage while ex-tending the categories of workers to which it applies.

The current minimum legal wage for all workers except government employees, agricultural workers, and em-ployees in very small shops is 31.50 per hour. For all time in excess of 40 hours per week, the minimum rate jumps to $2.40 per hour. (In 1973 Compress raised the hour. (In 1973 Congress raised the minimum hourly wage to $2 after much hot debate, but Mr. Nixon vetoed the raise as "inflationary.")

Preventing Exploitation

In general, minimum-wage legislation has been advocated by those who think of themselves as "liberals" and opposed by "conservatives."

The Left has seen minimum-wage laws as a way of preventing the unfair exploitation of certain the unfair exploitation of certain segments of the labor force — principally the least-skilled and least-organized workers — by stight-fixted employers. The Left'a argument is that every worker should be able to enjoy a certain minimum.standard of living, and that if some employers are unfailling to nay their workers a workers. willing to pay their workers a wage on which they can live decently then the government must intervene.

Government Meddling

The Right has countered with the charge that minimum-wage laws are "socialistic" and represent an unwarranted governmental restriction on private enterprise, Minimum-wage opponents point out that the steep increases in the wage floor in recent years have added substantially to the present in-flation and, by pricing marginal workers out of the labor market, have also generated unemployment. Furthermore, they claim, since many workers who are paid at minimum-wage levels have other means — for example, minors housewives who are working on a part-time basis to supplement their husbands' incomes — they their husbands' incomes — they do not really need to be protected from "exploitation." A law making it illegal to hire such persons at $1.50 per hour has not belped them; it has simply pushed them out of the labor market altogether.

Race before Economics

As long as the argument remains in the realm of economics, a fair-minded person must admit that both the proponents and the opponents of minimum-wage legislation have points worth considering. It is only when the racial issue comes into the picture that we can take an absolutely unequivocal position.

Race has already been introduced by those on both sides, of course. Liberals, displaying their usual preoccupation with the well-being of non-Whites, have particularly bemoaned the "exploitation" of Black and Chicano workers, the great bulk of whom have traditionally been paid the lowest legal wages to do the dirtiest and most unpleasant work.

Fiscal conservatives have countered with the observation that raising the minimum wage has the paradoxical effect of increasing the unemployment rate in the ghetto.

A certain percentage of skilled Negro workers have secure jobs, and they benefit from any increase in wages. Our many are able to hold jobs only so long as their labor is sufficiently cheap. As the minimum wage rises it becomes more and more economical to replace them with machines. Blacks who could pay their way with pick and shovel or push-broom at $1.00 per hour are replaced with a hydraulic backhoe or a power sweeper when the minimum wage hits when the minimum wage hits $1.60. Thus, employers whose-only real interest is in helding down the wages they must pay piously proclaim their concern over Black unemployment.

The Old South

Historically, the minimum wage has had a significant effect on the level of White unem-ployment as well — but in the opposite direction.

Prior to the Civil War, small

White farmers could not compete in the Southern marketplace with the large plantations, which were the large plantations, which were-worked by Negro slaves. The same thing applied to White blacksmiths, carpenters, masons, cooks, domestic ser-vants, gravedigers, and boot-blacks. There was little demand for the White man's labor in the South, so long as Blacks were available to do the same work for robbine.

The abolition of slavery had the effect of creating massive unemployment among the Negro freedmen at the same time that it generated new employment opportunities among Southern Whites. If an employer had to pay someone a dollar a day to operate his cotton gin, he preferred a White man for the job instead of a Black. Of course, if a Black would take the job for fifty cents a

Preferential Black Hiring

When a true minimum wage came into effect, together with the mandatory improvement of working conditions, Blacks holding the most menial positions began losing the security of knowing that no White man would ever want to compete for the jobs they held. The response of liberal policy makers has been first to outlaw any employment preference for Whites and then, as Blacks were still unable to compete in a free job market, to institute preferential Black hiring quotas.

Money vs. Race

In Europe a similar relation-ship of wages and working conditions to racial employment patterns can be seen. In England it was not just racial-equality foolishness on the part of befuddled limousine liberals which opened the floodgates to a growing torrent of colored im-migrants after World War II. It was also the greed of factory was also the greed of factory owners who welcomed the hordes of Jamaican Negroes and Pakistanis because they would work for less than Englishmen and wouldn't complain about abominable working conditions

The British ruling class put rofits first and the welfare of their own working classes last – and the present state of affairs is England is the consequence. In France the demand for cheap labor brought in a flood of Algerians from North Africa – and resulted in the race riot which have been plaguing many French cities recently.

National Alliance: New Superstructure for Movement

The movement of national liberation and regeneration in America has taken another major step forward with the formation of a new organization:

the National Alliance.
Originally NYA was conceived as strictly a youth group, enlisting and directing the energies of persons under 30 years old. It was anticipated that, as the movement grew, parallel organizations comprising other organizations comprising other segments of the population would be formed: for example, a fac-tory workers' organization, a retired persons' organization, an organization primarily for business and professional people,

The actual task of organizing such groups is more easily organization has, by its very name, a limited appeal among many segments of the population who are otherwise ripe for recruitment into the movement. The manifest task of the National Office was to broaden the scope of appeal of the movement to include every American willing to collaborate in the task of building a new order in American life — and yet to do this without in any way sacrificing what had already so painstakingly been created in the form of NYA. This task became particularly urgent in the latter half of 1973, as the mood of the country began shifting perceptibly toward an anti-System attitude.

Rather than attempting to form another specialized organization co-ordinate with NYA, it was decided to create at this time a National Alliance, will remain generalized in its appeal and its membership and will guide and direct all the special-interest groups which will become parts of the movement in the future including, of course, NYA.

New National Office to Open

A new, larger National Office for the National Alliance / NYA will be opened in the Washington area March 1. It will greatly expand National Office facilities, which have been crammed into inadequate quarters for the past year and a half.

Help Us Build a Better America — Join!

Who We Are

The National Alliance is a growing, dynamic organization of patriotic men and women concerned about America's future and determined to take a hand in shaping that

Our members come from a wide variety of backgrounds, but we all share four things in common:

First, a deep and vital concern for our Western racial-cultural heritage. We esteem that heritage, created for us by the blood and toil of our ancestors over many thousands of years, as our most precious possession. We accept as the sacred obligation of our generation the defense and the furtherance of that heritage so that heritage so that that heritage, so that we may pass it on, enhanced, to our descendants.

Second, a recognition of the natural nequality of men. We recognize that any truly progressive society cannot be based on an artificially imposed "equality", just as it cannot be based on a system of privilege. artificially imposed "equality", just as it cannot be based on a system of privilege according to wealth or social class, but must instead be organized so as to offer to each member of society an opportunity, commensurate with his demonstrated character and ability, for the contribution of the fruits of his falent to the whole community.

Third, an absolute rejection of neo-liberalism in all its sickly and destructive manifestations. We understand that this disease of the spirit, whether it raises its head in the guise of revolutionary Marxism or as the media-peddled philosophy-religion of the present System, is alien to our people and must be utterly rooted out and eliminated, along with its bearers.

Fourth, an eager willingness to take an active part in promoting our ideals and combating the enemies of those ideals, even when considerable self-sacrifice may be involved. That is, we all place the common in-terest before our self-interest and dedicate ourselves to personal struggle in behalf of that

What We Want

Our members are working to build a revolutionary new order of things in American life — a new order based on natural laws.

We want to develop in America a healthy cultural and racial approach to politics reflecting an understanding of authority, discipline, duty, and honor.

We want to achieve an organic society which will not only protect and perpetuate the great, traditional values of Western civilization but will purify the Western world of the degeneracy of communism and liberalism.

We want to secure for our people control over our own destiny by eliminating from the nerve centers of our society every anti-American and anti-Western influence

We want to safeguard our racial identity by putting an end to the present insanity of en-forced racial integration, which is threatening all involved with social chaos, cultural dissolution, and racial death.

We want to foster among our people, through the recapture of our information media and our educational system, a new spiritual outlook the outlook of free men living and working in harmony with Nature.

We want to make possible for our people a new way of life, a meaningful and satisfying way of life as opposed to the present rat race in which every man and every woman exists simply as an exploitable economic unit.

We want our country, one day, to have a sane policy toward the other nations of the world, in place of the self-destructive idiocy world, in place of the self-destructive idiocy which presently passes for American foreign policy. We need a policy based on a recognition that our interests are bound up with those of the other peoples sharing our common racial-cultural heritage, whether in Canada, Europe, southern Africa, Australia, or elsewhere, and that other races must develop in accord with their own, distinct racial-cultural imperatives — without help or hindrance from us except where such development poses a distinct threat to our own security.

Decadence, Charlatanry Destroying Western Cultural Heritage

A recent issue of Newsweek devoted most of its pages to an article on "the arts" in present-day America. The enthusiastic introduction to the article described its subject as "the greatest orgy of cultural activity in all of history." It proudly went on to claim. greatest orgy of cultural activity in all of history." It proudly went on to claim: "The arts in America have produced more world records than any other society can boast — more creators, more packagers, more distributors, more consumers than anywhere else. ...art in the great mass society of America has become the biggest service industry in the world."

Orgy, Yes - Art, No

That was quite an appropriate introduction to what followed. The article was indeed about an "orgy" and an "industry." But "art"? No, not even bad art or non-art. The orgy of activity non-art. Ine orgy of activity portrayed in Newsweek can only be described as anti-art: "sculpture" exemplified by hideously ugly monstrosities of rusty iron or garish fiberglass; "music" performed by outlan-dishly costumed homosexuals or perspiring Negroes screaming into microphones; "painting" consisting of multicolored stripes on a 400-foot section of asphalt in downtown roadway Philadelphia.

Withered Sense of Beauty

Although Newsweek's tendency was to magnify the more grotesque and perverse tendencies in the current American "culture orgy," the portrayal was depressingly close to reality in most cases. Western man's artistic sense once soaring and artistic sense, once soaring and artistic sense, once soaring and upliffing, seems to have withered, darkened, and become cancerous in the twentieth century. His urge toward beauty and truth seems to have degenerated into a morbid

degenerated into a morbic definition with ugliness, an irresistible desire to be distracted, amused, deceived. Newsweek justifies the new tastes with the argument that they are more "fun" than the old. In describing the "new music," the earlies believe that Americans the article claims that Americans didn't have any fun when they went to concerts in the old days. In contrast, "new music is one big carnival of sound — diverse, noisy, colorful...." Noisy, yes.

Decadence - Or a Hoax?

What has happened to the race which produced Beethoven and Mozart and Wagner, the great sculptors of ancient Greece, the architects of Rome, the painters of Florence? What has happened to the self-discipline, the will-to-order, the sense of reverence before Nature's majesty which characterized the great artistic tradition of the West?

Have we really become so decadent, or is the "new art" just some gigantic Madison Avenue

The Newsweek article at-tempts to disarm those who suspect it is the latter with the statement: "There is still for many people an atavistic feeling that all artists are charlatans, carnival men in tuxedoes who are out to take your money if you have any or to make a fool of you if you don't."

Effects of Spock

A close look at the "service industry" which churns out the new art will convince the thoughtful observer that both decadence and charlatanry have a lot to do with it. The Spock generation, saturated with permissiveness and pot and pacifism and reared in an artificial world of autos and asphalt and neon, does indeed have a different attitude discipline and man toward and the universe than its predecessors, and this is reflected in different tastes in music, painting, drama, and other art forms.

Certainly, if most Americans really demanded Beethoven instead of Frank Zappa the manufacturers of 8-track tape cartridges would scramble to satisfy that preference.

Allen Promoters

But there is more to it. America's decadence has had a helping hand. Popular art or "pop" culture is, in America, to a "pop" culture is, in America, to a large extent not really folk culture. It is, with a few exculture. It is, with a trew ex-ceptions, not organic, not rooted in the people. Instead, it is an artificial product, created, packaged, promoted, and disseminated by a group of businessmen who have very little in common with the captive consumers of their product. Although room is still made for some genuinely American art country-and-western music, for example — much of the "art" promoted by the pop-culture industry is of alien origin; either Jewish or, especially in the case of music and dance, African.

Jewish Dominance

Even though a majority of the "artists" on the pop-culture scene are still White Americans, they are employees of an in-dustry which is completely dominated by Jews and which, for reasons of its own, has chosen for reasons of its own, has chosen to selectively promote trends and fads which are foreign to the American majority.

The net effect of this alien influence has been cultural chaos. It has largely alienated Americans from the great cultural beritage handed to them by their ancestors in Western Europe and left them culturally rootless — a people, in fact, with rootless — a people, in fact, with no true culture, particularly the generation born since World War II.

America's culture industry is closely tied to another industry dominated by Jews: the mass media. Radio, TV, motion pictures, and the press are the channels through which virtually channess through which wit could all pop culture is disseminated.

The men who own and control the media — i.e., the men who make up the media "establishment" — are in a position to determine which artists' works will be brought before the public met subside will not Perhans it is and which will not. Perhaps it is partly unconscious on their part, or perhaps it is wholly conscious, but they have tended to promote those artists and performers more in attune with their own more in attune with their own souls than with those of the American majority.

Professor Ernest van den Professor Ernest van den Haag, the noted social philosopher, has pointed this out in his outstanding book, The Jewish Mystique: "Persons whose outlook and sensibility differ radically from what is differ radically from what is current, or acceptable, within the establishment are unlikely to be understood by establishment members. They are automatically relegated beyond the pale. For them to be heard, published, read, understood, or appreciated according to their merits becomes very difficult." merits becomes very difficult." Perhaps what is so discordant Perhaps what is so discordant and destructive to the Western muse is seemly to the Levantine.

The Emperor's New Clothes

But deceit has also played a major role in the undermining of Western culture. Pop art has been sold to gullible, Gentile America in much the same way that the two wandering silk merchants sold a new suit of clothes to the emperor in the immortal tale by Hans Christian Andersen

When the critics, in collusion with the media masters and popculture vendors, solemnly an-nounce that the latest collection of rusty scrap-iron assembled by pop-sculptor Robert Morris is very "significant," or that a newly daubed-and-smeared canvas by pop-painter De Kooning shows "deep insight" into something or other, and when one or two of the nouvesufility-riches then begin buying the junk at astronomical prices, the man on the street is suitably the man on the street is suitably impressed. He figures that where there's smoke there's fire, and where all the critics and collectors are making such a fuss there must be art.

Too Eager to Be Chic

Americans are easy marks. By Americans are easy marks. By and large, they do not have the Levantine subtlety of their deceivers. They are a simple, straightforward, direct folk, but, for some dark reason, they seem to be ashamed of that fact. They want to be sophisticated. They want the world to think they are chic and fashionable. Whenever a new fad comes along, they want to be the first on board.

This unfortunate tendency, coupled with their unfathomable credulity, has made of them the world's principal laughingstock for some time now. It has led them to endorse, in concert halls and art museums across the nation, some of the most solemn foolishness the world has seen in recent years.

It's about time someone pointed out to them that the emperor is stark, staring naked.

Dear Editor:

Your issue number 22 is on target. Finally you've printed a front-page article that strikes a responsive chord in the heart of responsive chord in the heart of the American worker. Blue-collar workers are the bulk of our population and offer the highest percentage of potential recruits of any group. This is probably borne out to some degree in the proportionately higher campus recruiting of children of blue-collar families. It is to the collar families. It is to the workers and their college kids we should direct our propaganda. Dear Mr. Pierce:

Enclosed is highly significant material, which undoubtedly will serve to inform ATTACK! readers as to the further commu-readers as to the turtner commi-zionist erosion in America. First, the Newsweek article tissue of December 17, 1973, p. 44, "U.S. Jews: A New Age of Anxiety"). Note the following: Rabid Jewish nationalism is depicted in the photo as a virtue, but Western spildarity is conbut Western solidarity is con-sidered "fascist." Most of these fanatics are the ones who demonstrated violently against Vietnam.

This double standard reminds me of a quote I read some time ago by none other than Jean Paul ago by none other than Jean Paul Sartre, the maximum expression of decadent existentialism. It went something like this: "Anything is permissible, except that Israel should cease to exist." Be sure to read the article in its entirety; it is a veritable gold mine of information. Note that it carefully delineates the Zionist apparat in the Congress and gives its approximate size. Also it clearly shows the ways and clearly shows the ways and means, as well as the chain of command, for this alien kom-missariat in Washington. This in itself is priceless for us.

Dear Dr. Pierce:

When I joined the National Youth Alliance three years ago I had some misgivings that a man of my age, over 60, would be relegated to an auxiliary membership category, required to sit back, keep quiet, and send in my dues regularly, but not expected or invited to take a more active role in a "youth" organization which was oriented toward the activism of people "under 30." 'under 30."

After three years of mem-bership, I am glad to report that in no way was I ever rebuffed because of my age, rather, all of the youths I have worked with in NYA, including teenagers, have been only too glad to work with an older man, in spite of the physical limitations which come with the "grandfather" age, and I noted that the three generations which work within NYA complement rather than impede each other, like the various instruments of a protection from any future Arab "aggression." The proponents of a U.S. guarantee for Israel argue that, because of American pressure on the Jews to come to an agreement with the Arabs, the Jews agreed to give up a portion of the conquered "buffer zone" around Israel and withdraw to "less secure" borders.

Therefore, they claim, America has a moral respon-sibility to see that the Arabs do not take advantage of this concession we have forced on Israel. We should treat any future attack on Israel as an attack on the United States and respond im-mediately with our entire military capability, they say.

Deceiving America

With such a guarantee, all Israel would have to do is arrange to make her next incursion against her long-suffering Arab neighbors look like "Arab aggression" to the American public. With Zionists in complete control of the U.S. news media, that should not prove too difficult a bit of decept

In his latest public statement on the subject, Mr. Kissinger assured anxious Americans that no U.S. guarantee had yet been given to the Jews. Let us hope that, for once, he is telling the wants to hold back on the an-nouncement of a U.S. treaty with Israel until the Arabs have been conned into ending their ban on petroleum sales to America.

Zionist Empire

If there is one thing in the entire Middle East mess that is absolutely certain, it is that the Jews have no intention whatever of giving back all their stolen Arab territory. They have already begun building apart-ment complexes and shopping centers for Jewish colonists in the territories seized in 1967.

Any talk of returning even to the 1967 boundaries is solely for the sake of deceiving the Araba and world opinion. The Zionist dream of a Middle Eastern empire is by no means dead.

What we may expect to see in the Middle East in the months ahead is this: The Jews will continue their withdrawal from the banks of the Suez Canal to a line a few miles east. At the same time they will maintain the pretense of wanting to work out a final peace settlement with the Arabs involving the return of "most" of the Arabs' territory, in the pending talks at Geneva.

End of Embargo?

At some time during this process the Arabs will probably let themselves be persuaded to those jobs. These foreigners now comprise 10 per cent of the total West German labor force. When Hitler was running things, that would not only have been Illegal, because of racial considerations, but it would also have been unnecessary, because he established minimum wages and working conditions for all German workers and taught them that no German was "too good" to perform any task which served the national community. After the war, of course, all Hitler's laws were swept away by the victorious democrats and communists.

In America we have an awesome racial problem to solve, completely aside from such economic considerations as wages, working conditions, and begin selling oil to the United States again. Then Kissinger will announce a U.S. "guarantee" of Israel's security. Finally, the Jews will throw a monkey wrench into the Geneva, peace talks, accusing the Arabs of not acting in good faith, and then they will begin goading the Arabs into attacking them.

unemployment. But after that racial problem is solved, we should still base our approach to the minimum-wage question on what our racial problem has taught us.

In the better America we want in the better America we want to build, we must never again have any type of work which White Americans are "too good" to do. We must never again allow ourselves to be tempted to bring black men or brown men or yellow men into the country because there is some dirty or unpleasant work to be done or because colored workers will accept less pay than Whites,

Two Dollars Not Too Much

There must be minimum standards of pay and working conditions which apply to all jobs, whether harvesting fruit, digging sewers, or operating a lathe. If an employer cannot afford to pay all his workers a decent wage — and two dollars an hour is not too high a minimum wage — he will either have to raise the price of his product, or teach his workers how to be more productive, or automate.

If he cannot do any of these things, he will just have to go out of business, and society will have to get along without whatever he had to sell

No Featherbedding

The other side of the coin is that we should think in terms of minimum acceptable standards of job performance, as well as a minimum wage. There must be no place in the new America for featherbedding, for make-work, for work rules which forbid doing a job a better or faster way, for slipshed work or slacking — or for unions which encourage such practices

Efficiency and productivity must not be viewed as threats to job security but as guarantees of a strong nation, which in the long run can provide the only true security for all the members of the national community.

What America needs most of all is a new attitude toward work. on the part of employers and employees alike. Work, whether of the brain or the hand, must come to be regarded as a vital contribution to the welfare of the whole community - not just an unpleasant prerequisite to the receipt of one's weekly pay en-

And the employee himself must And the employee himself must be looked upon by his employer as a co-worker in the "service of the community — not as an exploitable commodity which can be used to accumulate more capital. If such a view is "socialistic," well, let it be so.

No Useful Work Unworthy

American workers must back away from the tendency to regard hard manual labor as undignified or undesirable and to value their employment solely in terms of the wages it yields. They must learn to value their work instead for its usefulness

They must reject the rhetoric of many union bosses which portrays the employer as their natural enemy. Instead, they must see him as someone who, like his employees, has an essential role to fill in the economic life of the national and racial community. If that is "fascist" or "reactionary," we afford to do without that much.

The truth is that we were receiving more than thirteen per cent of our oil from the Arabs, and the cutoff has begun to wreak real havoc in the American economy. A quarter of a million American workers have already been fired or laid off as a direct result of the oil shortage, and many more will lose their jobs in the weeks and months ahead.

Shifting the Blame

The people who are responsible for the oil crisis — namely, organized Jewry and their hirelings in the Congress — have been busy trying to place the blame elsewhere. At first they accused the Arabs. The Arab refusal to continue selling oil to those nations which were arming the Arabs' enemies was called "blackmail."

The American people wouldn't swallow that charge, so now the culprits have tried to switch the blame to the big oil companies. Senator Jackson's Permanent Investigations Subcommittee staged a televised "show trial" of oil company executives, in which they were accused of generating an artificial shortage in order to drive prices up and force the smaller, independent oil dealers

Now, it is true that the oil company moguls are about as unscrupulous a pack of thiever as the senators on Jackson's sub-committee. They would as soon cut a competitor's - or a customer's - throat as look at

They are not above holding back on the supply of oil if they think they can gouge a few extra dollars out of the public by so doing. They are, after all, in business to make money.

But they cannot fairly be blamed for the major short-comings in America's energy policies over the last 20 years. They imported oil from Arabia instead of drilling more wells in Texas, because they could buy Arab oil cheaper than they could drill for it here. For similar reasons they did not explore much of the con-tinental shelf off America's coasts, or build new refineries, or try to find ways to extract oil from oil shale. Without massive subsidies, it just didn't pay them to do those things.

Lack of Leadership

If the oil companies could have looked ahead and foreseen that the world price of crude oil would triple in 1973, then they would have done many things differently. But they couldn't; and the fault is more a lack of responsibility and leadership on the part of the government than anything else.
