SF WEEKLY

DECEMBER 18, 1991 WOL. X, NO. 42 WISSUES / ARTS / CULTURE / COMMENTARY WIFREE

Back in the New S.S.R.

Moscow's artists go crazy from the cold (p. 19)

Peeved Pixie

Boston band's singer Black Francis answers our dumb questions (p. 22)

Sex With Santa

What to get someone who's naughty and nice (p. 29)

It's been 28 years since Oswald-Mafia-Castro-CIA killed our 35th president. Hundreds of books, millions of rumors and one Oliver Stone film later, we are still upset. Andrew O'Hehir uncovers the ultimate conspiracy and explains how the Kennedy assassination is destroying America. page 15

Fallen Buy-King Revelations of John F. Kennedy's personal peccadillos baven't dulled bis mysterious luster or eared with her husband's blood. standing alongside Lyndon Johnson in Air Force One as he takes the oath of office. Three hours earlier she was a society wife, playing the role of loyal a society wite, playing the role of loyal helpmate to her vain, philandering, patrician social-democrat husband. But at that faterful moment she was America, transfixed by history, too numb to try to wash away the bloodstains. It was a moment of truth, a hole in the fabric of time, when we hole in the fabric of time, when we caught a glimpse of our nation's real and terrible legacy before looking away again. No living human knows precisely what strange scenario reached its climax in that crucial six seconds in climax in that crucial six seconds in Dallas. Three or more shorts were fired by one or more assailants; a man filed. Beyond that, impenerable layers of lies, death, idiocy, incompetence and psychosis have made the "truth" about John Fitzgerald Kennedy's death literally unknowable. But there death incraity unknowanie. But there are further truths. On another level, we all know exactly what happened: Things went "wrong," Planet America rolled off its axis, mere anarchy was loosed upon the world. Another truth is that we don't need or want to know who killed Kennedy; we need the JFK assassination as a nightmarish religious vision, a dark shrine for self-flagellating worship, a negative mir-acle as mysterious as the Holy Ghost or the doctrine of transubstantiation.

All this has little to do with Kenne dy the man, however we judge his presidential record or the hilarious presidential record of the hularious and alarming accomplishments of his private life. JFK's Carnelot was a shared illusion, a structure of belief; if the gunfire in Dallas hadn't shattered it, something else would have. Our na-tional flustice. tional fixation on the assassination relates to John Kennedy's life in the retates to John Kennedy's tire in the same way that the apocalyptic fervor of Christian fundamentalism reflects the life of Vishua, the Jewish carpen-ter from Nazareth. JFK is an American obsession as deep as baseball, a field of bad dreams ocep as oascoai, a neto or oad oreams littered with esoteric terminology, statistical minutiae and strange sym-bols, an intellectual morass as com-plex and frustrating as the interpreta-tion of scripture. The devil, in this case, is definitely in the admittedly seduritise details.

case, is definitely in the admittedly seductive details: Why is a man standing under an open umbrells on that sunny Dallas day? What are the enigmatic shapes on the "grassy knoll"? (If you seek a uperabundance of answers to this uperabundance of answers to this uestion, there is actually a bimonthly sublication called the Grassy Knoll superabundance of answ Gazette.) What about the pristine "magic bullet" found on John Con-"magic bullet" found on John Con-nally's stretcher that supposedly went through Kennedy's throat, then changed direction and wounded the Texas governor? Was Lee Harvey Os-wald a CIA stonge, a KGB plant or a Mafia hireling? (Oswaid's corpse was exhumed in 1981 at the behest of especially ghoulish assassination buffs, disappointingly, he turned out to be himself after all.) Did the "three tramps" briefly detained near Dealey Plaza include conviced himman Charles V. Harrelson (father of Woody on Cheers) andfor future Watergate buglar Cheers) and/or future Warergate burglar

E. Howard Hunt? Was the presidential casker that left Parkland Memorial Hospital that afternoon the same one that came off the plane at Andrews Air Force Base in the evening? Where is Kennedy's brain?

That way lies madness, to be sure.
But when it's this exciting, who needs sanity? Those who are enraged at Oliver Stone's film IFK for its heavily fictionalized blending of various assassination theories are missing the point. As Stone has apparently grasped in his blockhead populist way, the JFK killing has been fiction for a long time. It's the creation myth for a long time. It's the creation myth we use to understand the discords of contemporary America; the tale of the fall from grace, for which we keep vainly seeking redemption. If it hadn't happened, we would have had to in-

UR LOVABLE LOUT of a nation UR LOVABLE LOUT of a nation arrived hite to the modern age, like a hayseed soldier putting his boots on the table at a distingue Paristan nightclub. But we made up for lost time at Hiroshima and Nagafor lost time at Hiroshima and Naga-saki. The Bomb not only syported and mutilated thousands of human beings, it unwittingly launched the era of in-ternational cultural dislocation that came to be called postmodernism. This had far-reaching consequen-ces, to be sure, although they weren't obvious right away. Our cavity-free, milk-fed children, their bodies made strong in 12 ways by Wonder Bread, thenceforward sleen in the darkening stong in 12 ways by wonder Bread, thenceforward slept in the darkening shadow of the mushroom cloud. From generals to artists, we all grew up ad-dicted to the nuclear threat. Years later we would realize that our bombs had conceived a new Japan in our own image, a Japan dedicated to taking over and surpassing our once-triumphant ideological blend of narcissism and

But it was on that autumn day in Dallas that postmodernism came home to roost. Dallas seemed like a magic trick, or the culmination of some trick, or the culmination of some elaborate practical Joke; it traumatized us because we couldn't figure out how it worked. We still feel sure that if we go through it one more time, we'll see the concealed wires leading we it see the conceased wires leading to the book depository window, spot the clown on the grassy knoll, decode the umbrella man's secret message. But it's always the same stale pie in our face, all over again.

The Kennedy killing was obvious-ly more than an "ordinary" political assassination. It was also more than a metaphorical loss of innocence, which is how it appears in countless movies and TV commercials. Meta-phor is a cold construction of Hellen-ic logic, while what happened Nov-ember 22, 1963, in Dallas was a ritual event of the most profound order, a reshaping of our national paradigm. Many Americans, even those too young to remember the event, see the Kennedy assassination as the trigger that released all the perceived dis-order of the last three decades. Viet-nam; the race riots and white flight; Bobby, Martin and Malcolm; the '68 Democratic convention; the Panthers People's Park: Kent State: Attica: Nix on and Watergate; Jonestown; Mos-cone and Milk; the Tehran embassy, the Beirut Marine barracks; crack; AIDS; homelessness; Iran-Contra; the Persian Gulf.

Persian Gulf.

If we could run the Zapruder film in reverse, patch up the President's gruesome head wound, send the bullets flying back to the chambers whence they came, return the assassins to their sinister underworld, and back up the Lincoln congerible so back up the Lincoln convertible so that lack and lackie are once again that Jack and Jackie are once again waving to the crowds in the Texas sun-shine, then we could also walk back-wards through the last 30 years, be-coming younger and more hopeful, forgetting tragedies one after another, artiving finally at a point of innocent stasis where we can stand forever watching the American sunrise with immortal delight. But we can't. Our Puritan legacy has left us a peo-ple with a taste for absolute doctrine, be with a case to zayotite coeffice, be it religious or secular, from the right or the left. We prefer a pure vi-sionary flame, an illumination of his-tory as a mystically unified field, to an acceptance of life as a complex of vagaries, accidents and random crossvagaries, accidents and random cross-currents. All good assassination theories seek to interlink, with jesuitical preci-sion, as much recent historical tur-moil as possible. Psychologically, the reasons for this are clear. If the central reasons for this are clear. If the central willainous conspiracy of our time—headed up, let's say, by Bush, Nixon, LBJ, Bill Casey and J. Edgar Hoover—has had its dark tentacles everywhere for 30 years, then the disastrous condition of America today is not our fault.

LIVER STONE HAS largely accepted the thesis advanced by former New Orleans District Attorney Jim Garrison, who argues that the JFK killing was essentially a right-wing coup of feat staged by the ClA and the military. This is certainly the intuitive belief of many Americans; it might even contain elements of the truth. But our pursuit of the answers is so fervid, so pathothe answers is so fervid, so patho-logical, that no truth will ever be com-plete enough to sarisfy us. Garrison, a noted mob confidant who was diagnosed as mentally un-balanced while in the Army, is one balanced while in the Army, is one short step away from people who've been abducted by aliens, or who see an immense network of Samnie covens beneath suburbia. His CLA plot is plaus-ible, but as Robert Sam Anson cata-

continued on next page

Lonely crusader

Paul Kangas on the mother of all conspiracy theories

AUL KANGAS PULLS up for an interview in an old green Volvo

Ail, KANGAS PULLS up for an interview in an old green Volvo with a message in the window.

"JAIL BUSH FOR THE MURDER OF JFK. See the photos $5," He's wearing a T-shir that says the same thing.

The hat sare coming near week, "he announces. These are exciting days for the beleaquered brotherhood of assassination buffs, For three decades they we bucked the official conclusion that Lee Harvey Oswald acted alone. For Kangas, the release of Oliver Stone; movie is reason to work even harder at getting our the nessage he's been searciling on San Francisco sidewalks and plastering on walls for years. "CIA KILLED JFK." At last, he believes, the public may be ready to listen, with satisfaction, Kangas points to If magazine's cover story on the movie, which notes at one point that "even Stone does not go as far as some others, who trace a CIA plot from the Bay of Pigs to Watergrate to George Bush."

"They're talking about me." he saws. "I wish they'd meet my man."

some others, who trace a CIA plot from the Bay of Pigs to Watergate to George Bush."

"They're talking about me," he says. "I wish they'd used my name." Kangas is a balding private investigator with a neathy curved musache, and are quivocal smile. He is successful at fixing up reflucturant winesses for defense attorneys. And he's insistent that Persident John F. Kennedy's murder was no aberrant act of a lone misfit. His smile is the defense of a long-suffering man used to disbelled.

"The CIA killed Kennedy because he failed to support the invasion of Cuba and was planning to end Vietnam," he says from behind the smile. "Nation was throlved. Bush was involved. The shooters were B. Howard Hunt and Frank Sturgis, the same guys who broke into Democratic National Headquarters 10 years late. Watergate was a failed attempt to get incriminating evidence about the assassination away from the Democrate Kangas has photocopies of an article placing Richard Nium in Dallas on November 22, 1965. Nixon denied this to the FBI. "He liked to the FBI." Kangas says. "He was there at a planning meeting for the assassination."

on November 24, 1905. Nixon denied this to the FBI. "He lied to the FBI." Kangas says. "He was there it a planning meeting for the assassination."

Kangas has an FBI document that shows Jack Buby worked for Nixonas early as 1947. He has a White House memo dated October 11, 1963, which refers to plans to withdraw 1,000 troops from Vietnam by the end of that year. He has a copy of a memin from J. Edgar Hoover dated a week after the assassination referring to "Mr. George Bush of the CLA" and his familiarity with anti-Castro Cuban in Mlami.

The Kangas scenario goes like this Nixon's ties to the Bush family due from 1941 when George's father Preston Bush recruited young Dick to run fire Congress Preston Bush's group later put together the Eisenhower-Nixon ticket.

The Preston Bush group had by 1960 two key goals, Kangas believes restore a pro-business government to Cuba and promote attit-commission wars, as in Vietnam, to make profitable work for the military-industrial complex. Kennedy resisted both ideas, Dallas was the result.

The CLA put levas of militonaire George Bush in charge of recruiting Cuban ceiles for an invasion of their homeland. Frank Sturgis emerged from the caste group Sturgis was a former Cuban official who would appear first with E. Howard Hunt as part of the assassination ream at Dallas and a decade later again with Hunt at the Watergate offices of the Democratic National Committee.

The Watergate burglary was an attempt to retrieve incriminating pictures taken by news photographers in Dallas immediately after the assassination. The pictures show Storgis and Hunt, desgitted as tramps, under arrest by Dallas police. Kangas copies of the photos come complete with transparent overlays of Sturgis and Hunt designed to confirm their identification.

Kangas has devised a board game he calls "Dallas 1963" to help people understand the bewidering elements in the piot. "Roll the dice," the instructions read. "To you slip JFR past the Grassy Knoll before the CLA assassins move into place."

➤ Paul Kangas can be reached at PO. Box 42644, S.E. 94142.

continued from previous page logued in his excellent Esquire cover story, it was one of 14 different hypo-thetical conspiracies Garrison had worked out, some of which featured the gay underground, the Dallas Police

worset ohr, some or which examine the gay underground, the Dallas Police Department and Czarist Russians. He also believes there were nine gunmen in Dealey Plazz, including some firing from the sewer drains. (The umbrella man was shooting poisoned darts.) Once you develop a theory, there are no philosophical limits to its growth. Fourteen plots and nine assassins obviously present a more fertile imaginative field than the bleak, rocky landscape of Lee Harvey Oswald's paranoid psychology (which strongly resembles the maladjusted stereotype of the conspiracy theorist). And the point is no longer to solve JFK's murder, If indeed it ever was. The point is to interpret the assassination murder, if indeed it ever was the point is to interpret the assassination to fit our particular dysfunctional world view; to prove to ourselves that there is order to the universe and that we understand it, even if others refuse to.

Stone speaks of himself in interstone spears of timiset in inter-views as Hamlet trying to solve the mystery of his father's death, or as Shakespeare altering the outlines of English history to fit Henry V. As pom-pous as these analogies are, they unpour as these analogies are, included derline the grotesque appropriateness of his project. America does imagine itself, like Hamlet, the damaged heir to a noble legacy; if we can make JFK conform to the dimensions of tragedy rather than of cruel and amoral farce, ve will be avenged, and our angst relieved.

Even more importantly, we need to be able to read history as a story. Shakespeare's Henry V has a clear conflict, a dramatic resolution and a conflict, a dramatic resolution and a moral, along with ethnic Jokes and a romantic subplot (whereas the his-torical Henry's French campaign was a bitter and pointless massacre, in-spired by competing interpretations of an arcane treaty). Like the other main an arcane treasy. Like the other main conspiracy theories, Garrison's has a strong narrative element: good guys (Jack and his innermost circle, except Lyndon) tricked by omnipotent and ruthlessly efficient bad guys (too numerous to mention): the hapless nation, left victimized and fatherless, destroying itself in paroxysms of grief; the intrepid investigator (Garrison, now played by Kevin Costner) who will lay bare the truth, and achieve mystical reunion between father and child.

Oliver Stone readily admits that he's trying to find out why he got so fucked up in Vietnam, his contention being that had Kennedy lived, the war would not have continued long. That issue itself is problematic, but never mind. The real point is that we have all been fucked up by post-1965 life in declining America. We are searching our collective past for that one trau-matic event, in the same way that ther-replace and neurotic nations soon the apist and neurotic patient scour the rocks of memory for the childhood horror that can explain everything. America's trauma is real enough.

But it doesn't stem from some drama tic cataclysm, from shadowy figures with guns arrayed among the storm drains and shade trees of Dealey Plaza. Its source is the untheatrical, non-narrative slow grind of history. There's nothing intoxicating about this trauma; it just hangs around us like fetid gas in grieve, as no other event has before or since. History suggests that an earlier and far different nation went through a crucial period of self-examination a crucial period of self-examination when Grant and Lee met at Appomatox Court House, when Lincoln spoke at Gettysburg, when John Wilkes Booth entered the presidential box at Ford's Theater. That troubled republic reassessed itself and went forward; but the psychological and physical violence that has ravaged America over the past three decades makes the Civil War of the 1860s look refreshingly straightforward.

We'll never know who killed John Kennedy. But we know enough. We Kennedy, But we know enough. We know that our myth-making zealotry has made every theory valid and every preposterous scenario true. We know that Kennedy's death was overdetermined; we have concocted a thou-ood-Stained Moment Lady Bird, LBJ and Jackie stare into bistory as

If you like morals, late 20th-century American life certainly offers them.
You can say that the bad karma from our national sins — the slaughter of the Indians, the arrival of the slave ships, imperialism, international cor stips, imperialism — has been visited upon us. Or that the loss of faith, either in meaningful spirituality or in science, has driven us insane; as the empire crumbles, we cling to our pantheon of martyred delities: Bogart, Marilyn, James Dean, Elvis, the Kennedys. Our republic's unresolved ten-sions, long held in check by a com-bination of forcible oppression and the unfulfilled but still-exciting promise of liberty for all, have emerged as gap-ing fissures that now threaten to tear the continent apart. In some ways, it's miraculous they took so long.

The Kennedy assassination was a moment when we caught a glimpse of our republic's demise. Ironically, it also brought Americans together to sand reasons why it happened. But we haven't faced the chill reality of lackie's bloodstained suit, her shocked Jackie's bloodstand suit, ner snockeu gaze meeting the eyes of posterity. Her husband's blood was our only way of witnessing, and lamenting, the blood of the Algonquin, of the African, of the Iraqi children not yet born. We are all conspirators in those deaths, and without the sickness they engendered, we would have had neither Ken-nedy's assassination nor our dement-ed fascination with it.

ed fascination with it.
We can no longer use JFK as a crutch, if our democracy is to survive. We created JFK, and killed him, to evade responsibility for the worsening calamity of America, and the calamities America has inflicted on the world. To survive, we need to walk away from the quagmire of Dallas. To walk away, we first need to stand still for a few moments, staring at ourselves in the camera lens, and feel the blood soak through our clothes.

At Half Price Books we have the very best selection of gift books today, all at prices reminiscent of yesterday. You'll find new books on everything from art and children's literature to engineering and sports. So visit Half Price Books this holiday season and pick up some great new reading material at an old fashioned price.

HALF BOOKS RECORDS.
PRICE BOOKS MAGAZINES

1849 Solano Ave. • 526-6080 • 2525 Telegraph Ave. (Between Parker and Dwight Way) • 843-6412 Both stores open 10 to 10 Monday-Sunday

GIFT CERTIFICATES AVAILABLE.