

SUNDAY'S PEOPLE

THREE SHOTS —

An actress playing Jacqueline Kennedy climbs over the back of the presidential limousine in a re-enactment of the assassination of President Kennedy in Oliver Stone's film "JFK."

Warren Commission's investigator calls 'JFK' a big lie

He was one of two Warren Commission attorneys assigned to investigate who shot Kennedy and Officer J.D. Tippit on Nov. 22, 1963.

The commission — headed by Earl Warren, then chief justice of the Supreme Court — concluded Oswald committed both crimes. Two days later, Oswald was killed by Jack Ruby, who the commission said also acted on his own.

"I didn't specifically say that Oliver Stone is an assassination whore," Belin said. "I'm saying I would lay out the facts and let a jury decide whether this is artistic license or whether it is a prostitution of the assassination by deliberately telling lies."

Stone responded that Belin was a name-calling "frustrated prosecutor." Belin, a senior partner in one of the largest law firms in Des Moines, Iowa, previewed the film last week. The movie opens nationally Dec. 20.

President Kennedy's assassination, is "a big lie that would make Adolf Hitler proud," said a top investigator for the Warren Commission. David Belin said Stone deliberately overlooks evidence that Lee Harvey Oswald acted alone when he killed Kennedy and a Dallas policeman.

"I didn't specifically say that Oliver Stone is an assassination whore," Belin said. "I'm saying I would lay out the facts and let a jury decide whether this is artistic license or whether it is a prostitution of the assassination by deliberately telling lies."

In the movie, Kevin Costner plays Jim Garrison, once a New Orleans district attorney who prosecuted a businessman on charges he conspired to kill Kennedy. After a two-year investigation and a 34-day trial, a jury took less than an hour to acquit the businessman. Garrison maintains he was right, and Stone has said the government sabotaged the prosecution.
