DALLAS

Out of Town

Dear Dallas: blame Oliver Stone. The assassination hysteria generated by "JFK" has now cost the city its bid to host the 1995 Special Olympic Games. Games officials—who were poised to select Dallas before the movie premièred—fear the controversy will eclipse the event. But perhaps their biggest worry is that a visit would be too painful for JFK's sister Eunice Shriver, who founded the Games. The Games were expected to pump $50 million into the Dallas economy—or about $40 million more than "JFK" generated for the city.

Shriver
