THE TEARS

a novel by Charles McCarry

The Pentagon Papers document American complicity in the bloody overthrow of South Vietnam's President Ngo Dinh Diem. But were all the consequences ever revealed? The Ngo family had pride, wealth, and an international network of supporters—the motivation and the means for seeking revenge. Did they get it that autumn afternoon in Dallas?

The author of the acclaimed Miernik Dossier explores this possibility in a gripping new novel, a blend of non-stop

For the readers who made In The Shadow of Man a best-seller, the story of Washoe and the chimps who use our language.

In the first major investigation of scientists' successful efforts to teach chimpanzees a human language, Eugene Linden shows both how this feat has been accomplished and what the experiments show about the changing relations between human beings and the natural world around them. Here's science fact at its original and provocative best.

For sports fans and nostalgia buffs, the bittersweet story of an American hero.

Joe Louis was not just the "Brown Bomber," he was the first Black Hope. The story of this sharecropper's son who became World Heavyweight Champion is also the story of the changing patterns of prejudice, discrimination and opportunity in American race relations. And in this lively, unauthorized biography, a veteran journalist captures the excitement, the heartbreak and the drama of Louis's career and of a crucial period in our recent past.
