Dear Harold,

Enclosed is a copy of the material I received from the LBT Library that you requested.

I hope you will have some time to relax after what must have been an exhausting and frustrating final editing process of Never Again! I am looking forward to it and do plan to use it in a course next Fall. Regarding the Posner project, I am working on getting copies of the students' evaluation. The Dean said he would send them to me, but that was over a week ago. I guess he will need a reminder. In terms of judging what students got out of it, I believe it would be best to get their own reaction rather than my evaluation which may reflect more what I hoped they got out of it.

I am about 80 pages into Waketh the Watchman. It reads well despite the typos. And it is moving in parts. Last night I read through your analysis of that long passage from Peers' book which concludes with JFK's observation, "and we call ourselves the human race." That remark alone speaks volumes about Kennedy.

Take care and regards to Lillian.

Best,
Genny

NOTICE

WARNING CONCERNING COPYRIGHT RESTRICTIONS

The copyright law of the United States (Title 17, United States Code) governs the making of photocopies or other reproductions of copyrighted material. The law extends statutory rights of authorship to unpublished works, which were previously protected by literary property rights under common law. Such works do not have to be registered with the Copyright Office to receive protection under this law.

In general the law provides copyright protection for a term of the life of the author plus 50 years. Unpublished and uncopyrighted works created before January 1, 1978, are covered as of that date by this same provision and are protected at the minimum until December 31, 2002. Works already in the public domain and works prepared by U. S. Government employees as part of official duties are not protected by copyright.

Under certain conditions specified in the law, libraries and archives are authorized to furnish a photocopy or other reproduction. One of these specified conditions is that the photocopy or reproduction is not to be "used for any purpose other than private study, scholarship or research." If a user makes a request for, or later uses, a photocopy or reproduction for purposes in excess of "fair use," that user may be liable for copyright infringement.

Persons wishing to publish any unpublished writings included in the papers of the Library should obtain permission from the holder of the copyright. Permission to reproduce copyrighted materials in the Library's still photograph, motion picture, cartoon, and oral history collections must also be obtained from the copyright holder. This institution reserves the right to refuse to accept a copying order if, in its judgment, fulfillment of the order would involve a violation of copyright law.
