

Cuban Radio Says Exile Boat Fired on Coast Guardsman

MIAMI, Fla., Oct. 10 (AP) — Havana Radio charged today that exiles bent on evacuating anti-Castro Cubans shot and killed a Cuban Coast Guardsman last Thursday night.

In a broadcast monitored here, the radio said Premier Fidel Castro's government would take "this chiminal act into consideration" in the negotiations concerning free departure of Cubans to the United States.

The negotiations are with the Swiss Embassy, which represents U.S. interests in Havana. The talks concern ground rules for the Castro open-door policy, which was to begin today.

The U.S. State Department said it would take 10 days or so before an agreement is worked out. In the meantime, it warned Cuban exiles in the United States not to try to pick up relatives and friends in individual small boats.

The Department said such trips might jeopardize a later exodus. The Department also was understood to be concerned that the boats would make it virtually impossible to screen refugees.

In the shooting Thursday night, Havana Radio said, the exiles were attempting "a clandestine departure, disregarding (the Cuban) government's offer" of free passage.

It said the exiles' boat was spotted by a Cuban patrol in Las Villas Province on Cuba's north shore. Shots were fired, the radio said, killing a member of the patrol. The broadcast said the invading boat headed back to the United States.
