hemispheric program of economic aid to be primarily instrument with which we would help them begin. Yet the proportion of aid that was economic in the past that most of it was military, unnecessary & hence, required expenditures by the recipient not warranted for economic they would not spend is without ~~mean~~ ~~front~~ ~~in~~ the case for this military the basis where the real need was economic. But military aid meant the creation of a military class which might develop an affinity for the U.S. military. When he reports a shift in the focus from from military to economic aid it offers no specific all. And despite all this, "The gap between the acts & promises" widened.
