Dear Mr. Evans,
Please do not trouble to reply to this letter unless it interests you.

I will be writing to no other editor about it until I have completed the project because of its nature and because of a new development. Despite the long-time, improper official interest in me and the kinds of documents I have been accumulating over the years, I have never been robbed before. I had a file other than the one I went over with Oliver and Lew. It is gone and a few other things with it. They can not possibly be misfiled. The package in particular cannot be because I have no file cabinet that would hold it. I did not discover this until I reached the point in the book where I wanted to use some of the documents.

I am writing the book I described to both men and am most of the way through the initial draft.

Because of this I believe I'll have to be more circumspect with that of which I write this letter. Not because I fear a theft, because I do not and have already duplicated multiple copies out of my possession. It is rather because I believe the Watergate official interests are using me by being responsible for my being able to obtain an entirely different official transcript. It is about 90 pages long, is not of Nixon talking to others, is a truly sensational document in its own right and has what I believe to be great usefulness for Nixon and his henchmen, those his need requires him to protect.

This transcript, of a meeting of the most eminent, is the most devastating commentary on the intelligence and police services of the federal government that in my long experience with one and investigating both is without equal.

I know I can trust you to preserve confidence, so I tell you that one of the participants was the late Allen Dulles, former CIA head. It was just before he died. His is the most thoroughgoing condemnation of the integrity and honor of these people, the most complete destruction of any reason ever to take the word on any. He included himself, even under oath.

It has taken me years to get this and I believe that could it not now serve the interests of General Haig's "sinister forces" I would not have it. I have two problems with it: getting it out and not serving those interests but serving the interest of truth and justice only.

What I am doing is preparing to print this in facsimile, one of the "underground" books I invented, along with a series of relevant FBI and Secret Service reports I have. These reports have not been published and are referred to, directly and indirectly, in the transcript.

As with the other proposals I made to you, I am without the means of printing this. It is ~~is~~ the hope that you may see enough in this for your own and subsidiary use and rights to make the printing possible that I write. Meanwhile, a young lawyer friend is seeing if he can borrow the money to pay the printer.

There is another area that is close to you because of your own courage in which this document, illuminated with other suppressed official evidence, can be of great and immediate importance. The terrified courts over here have rewritten the Freedom of Information law, most of all though a decision in one of a series of cases I filed. The initial decision was procured by false swearing and other corruption. The Senate has passed an amendment. The amendment is now in conference. If it survives that and then is passed by both houses, a Nixon veto is likely. It is explicit in the debate that the purpose of the amendment is to nullify the decision in Weisberg v. Department of Justice. Two young lawyers, just getting started and without means but competent in matters relating to this law, believe what I can can have a significant

If not decisive influence on the debates if I can get this completed in time.

So I write you in haste before leaving for Washington on the chance you have an interest and a reporter experienced enough in these kind of affairs, like Lew, who could examine this and relevant materials for you.

I have not indicated all the considerable news values in this document, merely those of greater current topicality. The others are extraordinarily sensational. I will have illustrations other than facsimile reproduction of FBI and Secret Service reports and I have it all in my possession, with duplicates elsewhere, from my earlier work. I have been working toward this for years, so except for being caught by surprise and when I am overly committed, I am prepared for this document.

Sincerely,
Harold Weisberg

I am writing this document to you in the hope that it will be of some use to you.

I have written this document in the hope that it will be of some use to you. I have written it in the hope that it will be of some use to you.

I have written this document in the hope that it will be of some use to you. I have written it in the hope that it will be of some use to you.

I have written this document in the hope that it will be of some use to you. I have written it in the hope that it will be of some use to you.

I have written this document in the hope that it will be of some use to you. I have written it in the hope that it will be of some use to you.

I have written this document in the hope that it will be of some use to you. I have written it in the hope that it will be of some use to you.

I have written this document in the hope that it will be of some use to you. I have written it in the hope that it will be of some use to you.

I have written this document in the hope that it will be of some use to you. I have written it in the hope that it will be of some use to you.

I have written this document in the hope that it will be of some use to you. I have written it in the hope that it will be of some use to you.

I have written this document in the hope that it will be of some use to you. I have written it in the hope that it will be of some use to you.
