Dear David,

To the degree I can I am trying to make an accurate account of the Oliver Stone movie JFK for the historical record. I've been asking friends to send me clipping from the papers they see no matter how inconsequential they may seem. Today I got one from the Inquirer that seemed inconsequential but I think is useful for the historical record.

I enclose a copy of it and of the memo I wrote on it.

Thinking of this reminded me that I've not received any clippings about the movie for the period just before it was shown and since, like reviews and comments.

If I thought that Nardelle was still your librarian I would write him. He was, at your editor's request, very helpful to me. Was the editor then Healy? Of the fellow from the New York Times? He also was very kind, whichever he was.

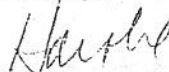

I'd appreciate it if you would be kind enough to have these clippings sent to me.

From what I've received Garrison has not had a word to say, about anything.

If any then on his staff have, it has not appeared around here.

Thanks for anything you can do, and hopes for a good year ahead.

Sincerely,

Harold Weisberg
